

Illustrations xiii

Tables xv

Abbreviations xvii

Introduction 3

The German Inflation in Collective Memory and Economic History 3

The Germany of Dr. Cornelius 11

BOOK ONE

THE INFLATION IN WAR AND RECONSTRUCTION

Part I: The First World War and the Origins of the German Inflation

1. Financing the War 25

*The Reichsbank, the Financial Preparations for War, and the Banking and Currency
Laws of August 4, 1914* 26

*War Loans, War Taxes, and Exchange
Controls* 37

2. War Economy and Inflation 52

What Price War? 52

The Price of War 66

German Society Between War and Peace 73

The Revolutionary Crisis and Its Limits 85

Part II: Managing the Crises: From the November Revolution to the Kapp Putsch

3. The Economics of Revolution and Revolutionary Economics 99

*Revolution and Demobilization: November
1918–May 1919* 99

Contents

Planning Financial and Economic Reform in the Shadow of Peacemaking, January–July 1919 131

4. The Chaotic Path to Relative Stabilization, July 1919–March 1920 156

Searching for Solutions: The Erzberger Tax Program 156

The Policies of the Economics Ministry under Schmidt and Hirsch 165

A Winter of Discontents 188

Part III: Relative Stabilization and Inflationary Reconstruction, April 1920–May 1921

5. The Trials and Tribulations of Relative Stabilization 211

The Relative Stabilization as a Historical Problem 211

The Crisis of the Summer of 1920 and Its Consequences 218

Policymaking in the Relative Stabilization 227

The Gloomy Balance of Relative Stabilization 250

6. What Kind of Reconstruction? The German Business Community Faces the Future 255

A Credit Organization for German Industry? 255

X Restructuring the Private Sector: The Gospel According to Stinnes? 272

Part IV: Reparations and the Domestic Management of the German Inflation

7. The Presentation of the Bill 309

Spa, Brussels, and Paris 309

- Thunder from London: From Sanctions to Diktat* 329
8. The Domestic Politics of Fulfillment, May 1921–January 1922 344
Fulfillment and Its Fiscal Limitations 344
The “Appropriation of Real Values” and the Tactics of Fulfillment 350
The Credit Action of German Industry 358
Salvation from London? 377
9. The Transition to Galloping Inflation 385
Theory and Policy 385
The Great Wage Push 406
10. The Vicious Circles: From Galloping Inflation to Hyperinflation, January–July 1922 418
The Paradoxes of Compliance 418
Fulfillment Policy in Crisis 428
The Coming of Hyperinflation 446
11. Stabilization Debates and Political Crises, August 1922–January 1923 453
Reparations and the Stabilization Issue, August–November 1922 453
The German Stabilization Debate and the Fall of Wirth 465
Business at the Helm? The Policies of the Cuno Government 490

BOOK TWO

THE HYPERINFLATION

Part V: Society, State, and Economy in the Hyperinflation of 1922

12. The Year of Dr. Mabuse: The Hyperinflation and German Society in 1922 513
Mark for Mark? 515
“The Distress of the Intellectual Workers” 527
“The Most Characterless Land on Earth” 555
13. Facing Disaster: The State and the “Productive Estates” on the Eve of the Ruhr Occupation 576

The Financial and Currency Crises 577

The Economic Crisis 597

The Social Crisis 609

Part VI: The Ruhr Crisis, End of the Mark, Currency Reform, and Stabilization

14. A Disordered Fortress: Passive Resistance, the Cuno Government, and the Destruction of the German Mark 631

The Insupportable Mark: Financing Passive Resistance 631

Crisis Mismanagement: Cuno's Foreign Policy in the Ruhr Crisis 658

Crisis Mismanagement: The Domestic Crisis of the Spring and Summer of 1923 669

15. The Politics of Currency Reform, August–October 1923 698

A Republic in Crisis 698

The Struggle over a Currency Reform Plan 708

Dictatorship or Enabling Act? Retaining Democratic Legitimacy 736

16. The Politics of Stabilization, October–November 1923 754

"Regime Change" or Change of Regime? The Stresemann Government between Communist Insurgence and Fascist Putschism 754

Introducing the Rentenmark 780

17. Saving the Stabilization, December 1923–April 1924 803

Establishing Credibility 803

A New Order: Credit Stops and Credit Starts 821

Epilogue: A Mortgaged Democracy 837

From Deflation to Deflation 837

From Geldmenschen to Hitlermenschen 854

Notes 859

Bibliography 945

Index 969