Contents

Acknowledgements vii

PART ONE Ethical Thinking and Management Practice 1

1 Introduction 1
The institutionalization of business and management ethics
A developmental perspective
Management and morality
The structure of this book
Conclusion

2 Personal Values and Moral Development 9
Personal and managerial values
Values and action in organizations
Moral development: an initial statement
Conclusion

3 Ethical Theory and Ethical Thinking 25
Rationalistic ethics
Altruism, emotion and character
The importance of moral judgment
Conclusion

4 Moral Judgment and the Management Process 39
Rationality, intuition and judgment
Awareness, conceptualization, and the judgmental mode
Pluralism and discourse: the dialogic mode
Conclusion

PART TWO Moral Issues in Organizations 53

5 Trust and Distrust in Organizations 53
The centrality of trust in social relations
Conceptualizing trust and distrust
Interpersonal trust in organizations
Trust, control and professional work
A matter of judgment
Conclusion

6 Work, Employment and Motivation 69
Varieties of work ethic
Feeling responsible and being motivated
Having responsibilities and being manipulated
Conclusion

7 Equality and the Management of Differences 86
Differences between people
Discrimination in organizations
The equitable organization
Conclusion

8 Organizations and the Attribution of Responsibility 105
Legal safeguards and moral responsibilities
The organization as a moral person
Systemic explanations or individual moral agency?
Problems of organizational and individual rationality
Amoral conformity or moral conflict?
Conclusion

9 Moral Dissent, Loyalty and Politics 121
Options for the moral dissenter
Dissent as loyalty
The ethics of organizational politics
The ethics of whistleblowing
Conclusion

PART THREE A Developmental Perspective 137

10 Developing Institutions: The Organization in Society 137
Societal influences and the organizational response
Some insights from organizational and management theory
Stakeholder theory and organizational governance
Conclusion

11 Developing Organizations: Towards the Moral Community 156
Organizational control or individual moral judgment?
A note on organizational culture
Formalized means to ethical ends
The control paradigm: leadership, codes and cultures
The autonomy paradigm and the moral community
Conclusion

12 Developing People: Moral Learning for Organizational Life 174
Personal moral attributes and the concept of competence
Management education and development
Conclusion

References 186

Index 204