

CONTENTS

---

PREFACE	xi
1. The development of a strategic approach to marketing	1
Chapter Objectives	1
Introduction	1
The origin and development of marketing	2
The need for a strategic approach to marketing	9
Strategic marketing planning	11
An overview of the steps and inputs to developing the strategic marketing plan	13
Some recent trends and developments in marketing concepts and applications	19
Summary	23
References	24
2. Analysing the environment: opportunities and threats	25
Chapter Objectives	25
Introduction	25
The importance of analysing the environment	25
The range and level of environmental factors	27
A system of environmental appraisal: identifying, forecasting and appraising environmental factors	30
Competitor analysis	35
Elements of competitor analysis: competitive industry structure	36
Competitors' objectives and strategies	41
Competitors' strengths and weaknesses	41
Assessing and anticipating competitors' reactions	43
Competitor intelligence: collecting information on competitors	43
Marketing strategies for different competitive positions in an industry: marketing warfare	44
Summary	46
References	47
3. Appraising resources: strengths and weaknesses	48
Chapter Objectives	48
Introduction	48
Problems and issues in assessing strengths and weaknesses	49
What attributes and activities should be included in the appraisal?	50
How can we evaluate what are strengths and what are weaknesses?	52
How should we organise and conduct the appraisal?	57
How can we interpret and use the outcome of our strengths and weaknesses assessment?	58
Summary	60
References	61

4. Strategic marketing planning tools	62
Chapter Objectives	62
Introduction	62
The product lifecycle concept	63
Suggested uses of the product lifecycle concept in strategic marketing planning	64
Criticisms and refinements of the basic product lifecycle concept	69
The concept of industry/market evolution	72
The experience curve effect in strategic marketing planning	75
Strategic implications of the experience curve effect	77
More comprehensive tools of strategic marketing planning	77
The Boston Consulting Group's (BCG) growth/share matrix	78
The McKinsey/General Electric business screen	80
Criticisms and limitations of the GE matrix	83
The Shell directional policy matrix	84
The limitations of the directional policy matrix	85
The product life cycle portfolio matrix	86
Uses and limitations of the product life cycle portfolio matrix	87
Profit impact of marketing strategy (PIMS)	88
Criticisms and limitations of PIMS	90
Recent developments in portfolio analysis	90
Summary	92
References	92
5. Markets and customers: buyer behaviour and marketing strategy	94
Chapter Objectives	94
Introduction	94
The scope and complexity of buyer behaviour	95
Buyer behaviour models	96
Consumer buyer behaviour	98
Strategic implications of buyer behaviour	98
Organizational buying behaviour	104
Strategic implications of buyer behaviour	110
Summary	113
References	114
6. Markets and customers: market boundaries and target marketing	115
Chapter Objectives	115
Introduction	115
The concept of a market: defining market boundaries	115
Market segmentation, targeting and positioning	121
Steps in target marketing	123
Bases for segmenting consumer markets	125
Bases for segmenting industrial markets	132
Segment evaluation: choice of targeting strategies and market targets	135
Production positioning and marketing mix development	137
Summary	140
References	141

---

7. Product and innovation strategies	142
Chapter Objectives	142
Introduction	142
Elements of product strategy	143
Product item decisions	143
Service products	147
New product development and innovation	148
The meaning and scope of innovation	148
The management of innovation: critical factors	149
Strategies for innovation	154
Technological forecasting	156
Developing and launching new products	159
Idea generation	160
Idea screening	162
Concept testing	163
Recent developments and thinking in new product development and innovation	170
Summary	174
References	175
8. Pricing strategies	176
Chapter Objectives	176
Introduction	176
The economist's view of price and pricing decisions	176
A framework for pricing decisions: key inputs	178
Company and marketing objectives	178
Demand considerations	179
Cost considerations	183
Competitor considerations	185
Pricing methods	186
Internal cost-based methods of pricing	186
Competition-based pricing	188
Customer value-based pricing	188
Other considerations in setting prices	191
Some clues to effective pricing strategies	193
Summary	194
References	195
9. Promotional strategy	196
Chapter Objectives	196
Introduction	196
Understanding marketing communications	197
Marketing communications	199
Planning marketing communications strategies	201
Advertising	208
Sales promotion	219
Publicity	226
Summary	227
References	228

10. Channels of distribution	230
Chapter Objectives	230
Introduction	230
Distribution system design	231
Structure of marketing channels	237
Flows in marketing channels	240
Channel co-ordination	241
Channel conflict	243
Summary	249
References	251
11. Logistics	252
Chapter Objectives	252
Introduction	252
Background to the growth in importance of physical distribution and logistics	252
The nature of physical distribution and logistics	256
Implications of the total systems approach	259
Designing and operating the business logistics system: marketing strategy implications	261
Information Technology and logistics	268
Summary	268
References	269
12. Sales management	270
Chapter Objectives	270
Introduction	270
Role of sales force	271
Types of sales force	272
Types of selling job	273
Roles of selling within marketing	274
Recruitment strategy	275
Selection procedures and techniques	281
Training	283
Sales force structure	288
The role of the salesperson in territory management	291
Journey planning	293
The general sales sequence	295
Effective communication	297
Managing and controlling the sales force	298
Evaluating the performance – quantitative standards	300
Evaluating the performance – qualitative standards	302
Remuneration	303
Sales force size	305
Sales office administration	305
The changing nature of selling and sales management. The emergence of relationship marketing	306
Summary	308
References	308

13. Marketing information systems	309
Chapter Objectives	309
Introduction	309
Information requirements	310
Marketing information system technology	315
Inputs to the MkIS	316
The internal accounting system	317
The marketing intelligence system	319
The marketing research system	324
Summary	330
References	330
14. Sales forecasting	331
Chapter Objectives	331
Introduction	331
Aid to management planning	331
Forecasting techniques available	338
Measures of value or volume?	343
The sales forecasting system	344
Summary	345
References	346
15. Implementing strategic marketing: organisation and resources	347
Chapter Objectives	347
Introduction	347
Implementation and human resources	348
Implementation and financial resources: marketing budgets	353
Organising the marketing function	355
Summary	359
References	360
16. Evaluating and controlling strategic marketing	361
Chapter Objectives	361
Introduction	361
The essentials of the control process	362
The control process in action	363
Key areas for control in marketing	365
Annual plan control	366
Profit control: the marketing budget	370
Efficiency control	372
Strategic control	373
Summary	378
References	379
17. International marketing	380
Chapter objectives	380
International	380
The growth of international/global marketing	381

International marketing definitions: levels of involvement in international marketing	383
International marketing management: differences and special issues	385
International marketing strategies and decisions	388
International marketing research and information systems	393
Summary	394
References	395
18. Analysing case studies	396
Chapter Objectives	396
Introduction	396
What is a case study?	397
Analysing case studies: the key steps	397
A final note on writing up case studies	411
19. Case study with specimen answer: Apex Leisure Limited	413
Appendices	416
Questions	429
Answer	429
20. Case study with specimen answer: Hamid Foods	442
Appendices	444
Questions	449
Answer	450
Index	461