

Contents

Foreword by Morton Deutsch	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
1. The Problem of Generations in the Kibbutz and Possible Explanations	1
2. The Ideology/Reality Gap and the Mission of the Kibbutz	29
3. Views Toward Israel: The Jewish Diaspora and the Arabs	103
4. The Kibbutz Definition of Socialism and Israeli Society	144
5. Political Ideology and the Effect of Education on its Continuity	181
6. Factors Influencing Ideological Continuity	199
7. Fulfilling Individual Needs in the Kibbutz Workplace	215
8. Educational and Training Ambitions—Expectations and Realizations	271
9. Public Activity in the Kibbutz	295
10. Attitudes Toward Family	321
11. Social and Interpersonal Relations	346
12. Social Status and Interaction	361
13. Achievements and Failures in Generational Relations	377
14. The Theoretical Model for Predicting Attachment	399
Epilogue	427
Appendix A: Preliminary Stages of Research	436
Appendix B: Index Structure	439
Appendix C: Follow-up Studies in 1973 and 1976	441
Bibliography	447
Index	460
About the Authors	465