

CONTENTS

Birgit Pfau-Effinger, Volkmar Kreißig
Introduction 3

Pertti Koistinen
The employment policy in the making-search for national solutions in Central and East European Countries 11

Béla Galgóczi
Labour market situation and institutional background in Hungary with special regard to regional characteristics 47

Dimitrina Dimitrova, Stefan Dimitrov
Labour market in Bulgaria: State and tendencies 59

Anatol Peretiatkowicz
Economic, social and political consequences of urban unemployment 67

Alexander Safonow
Privatization of state-owned property in the Russian federation: Labour and social problems 77

Doris Beer
The labour market policy in Eastern Europe 91

The processes of structural change which are described in the foregoing papers represent the status of October 1993. Action within the framework of the transformation processes led to further changes. Above the least it is important to acknowledge the situation in the transformation societies at this time for it can be the starting point for research on the further development of the transformation process.