

Contents

Preface	V
Introduction (Wolfgang Littek and Tony Charles).....	1
1 The Characteristics of the New Division of Labour	1
2 Why a New Division of Labour?	3
3 Technology and the New Division of Labour.....	5
4 New Forms of Work Organisation.....	6
5 The New Division of Labour in International Perspective.....	8
6 The Organisation of the Book	10
 Part I. Basic Issues in the New Division of Labour	 11
 Introduction to Part I.....	 13
 Chapter 1
Trust as a Basis of Work Organisation
(Ulrich Heisig and Wolfgang Littek)	15
1 Division of Labour, Control and Trust.....	15
2 The Discovery of Trust as a Basis of Labour Relations	20
3 From Organisational Practice to Management Strategy	23
4 Alternative Work Cultures, Social Relations and Interest Representation.....	25
5 The Distribution of Knowledge and Skills as a Foundation for the Formation of Trust Relations	28
6 Elements of High-Trust Work Systems	33
7 Trust Relations in Work Restructuring.....	42
8 Organisational Control via Promotion and Career Paths.....	44
9 Trust in Enterprises and Management Theory During the 1980s.....	47
10 Economic Recession and the Future of Trust Relations.....	49

Chapter 2
Meta-Corporations and Open Labour Markets: Some Consequences of the Reintegration of Conception and Execution in a Volatile Economy (Charles Sabel)	57
1 The Vicissitudes of the Sociology of Work	57
2 The Meta-Corporation: Reconciling Learning and Monitoring	61
3 Technological Diversification.....	73
4 Open Labour Markets and Groucho Marx Identities	84
5 In Search of a New Language of Power	86
Chapter 3
New Production Concepts and the Restructuring of Work (Michael Schumann, Volker Baethge-Kinsky, Martin Kuhlmann, Constanze Kurz, Uwe Neumann).....	95
1 Introduction — Structural Change in Industrial Work.....	95
2 The Point of Departure: Marking Out and Narrowing the Field of Study.....	96
3 Empirical Findings on Industrial Rationalisation and its Effects on Work.....	105
4 Problems Beyond the Reach of our Empirical Findings.....	129
Chapter 4
Gender and Technology: An Appraisal of the Labour Process Debate (Juliet Webster)	137
1 Introduction	137
2 Technology and the Labour Process: A Growing Recognition of Gender Issues	140
3 Conclusion: The Future of the Debate on Gender and Technological Change.....	157
Chapter 5
Globalisation, New Production Systems and the Spatial Division of Labour (Richard Gordon).....	161
1 Introduction	161
2 Internationalisation	164
3 Multinationalisation and Transnationalisation.....	170
4 Globalisation and New Production Systems.....	177

5 Globalisation and the Spatial Division of Labour: The Case of Silicon Valley.....	188
6 Conclusion	196
 Chapter 6
Continuities and Discontinuities in the Sociology of the Division of Labour (Dieter Bögenhold)	209
1 Introduction	209
2 Interdisciplinary and Historical Perspectives: The Age of Proletarianisation	211
3 The Vicious Circle of the Market.....	214
4 Continuities and Discontinuities	218
5 Conclusion	224
 Part II. The New Division of Labour in Comparative Perspective	229
 Introduction to Part II.....	231
 X Chapter 7
The New Division of Labour in Europe (Tony Charles).....	235
1 Introduction — Europe and the New Division of Labour	235
2 New Forms of Work in Europe	238
3 European Production in a Global Context	252
4 The New Division of Labour in Europe: Economy and Society in Transition	255
 Chapter 8
The Changing Face of Service Work in European Countries (Albert L. Mok and Dirk Geldof)	263
1 Introduction	263
2 What is Service and Service Work?	267
3 Changing Relations between Server and Customer	269
4 Worker Participation	270
5 The New Division of Labour in Comparative Perspective.....	271
6 Consequences for the External Labour Market	280
7 Conclusion	281

Chapter 9
New Technologies and Post-Taylorist Regulation Models: Production Planning Systems in French, Italian, and German Enterprises (Pierre Dubois, Martin Heidenreich, Michele La Rosa and Gert Schmidt)	287
1 Introduction: „Post-Taylorist“ Models of Production	288
2 Computerisation and Industrial Concepts of Production Planning	292
3 Computerisation and the Utilisation of Labour	299
4 National Patterns of Computerisation Processes and Socio-Cultural Contexts	304
5 Conclusion	313
 Chapter 10
The Social Foundations of Technical Innovation: Engineers in the Division of Labour in France and Japan (Marc Maurice)	317
1 The Research Context	317
2 The Societal Analysis of Innovation	319
3 The R&D Situation in France and Japan, and Recent Developments	324
4 The Logic of Industrial Development in France and Japan	326
5 The Status and Position of Engineers in the Innovation Process and in the Division of Labour	332
6 General Conclusion	342
 Chapter 11
Lean Production in Japan: Myth and Reality (Ulrich Jürgens)	349
1 The Messages of the MIT Automobile Study	349
2 Criteria for Lean Production in the MIT Study	352
3 The Team Concept in Japanese Production Organisation	355
4 Continuous Improvement Practices — Kaizen	360
5 Concluding Remarks	363
 Part III. Case Studies on the New Division of Labour
	367
 Introduction to Part III
	369

Chapter 12

Taylorism Never Got Hold of Skilled White-Collar Work in Germany
(Wolfgang Littek and Ulrich Heisig) 373

- 1 Introduction 373
- 2 Occupational Structure and Vocational Education in Germany 376
- 3 The Brief Career of Taylorism in White-Collar Work 379
- 4 The Consolidation of New Patterns of Work Design 386
- 5 Organisational Limits to the Efficient Use of Higher Skills 392

Chapter 13

Innovation, Employment Systems and Division of Labour: An Analysis of the Canadian Banking Sector
(Diane-Gabrielle Tremblay)..... 397

- 1 Technological and Product Innovation and Division of Labour..... 399
- 2 Transformation in the Nature of Work..... 402
- 3 Job Structures, Professionalisation and the New Division of Labour..... 404
- 4 Innovation and Employment Systems 409
- 5 Management Strategies and the New Division of Labour..... 411
- 6 Concluding Remarks on New Production Concepts and the New Division of Labour in Banking..... 414

Chapter 14

Office Work, Gender and Technological Change: The Portuguese Case
(Virgínia Ferreira) 419

- 1 Initial Question — Does Computerisation Mean Re-Masculinisation 420
- 2 Growth and Feminisation of Office Employment in Portugal 422
- 3 Feminization versus Computerisation Predictors 423
- 4 The Study: Re-Masculinisation in Business Services 426
- 5 The Evolution of Computerization in Portugal and its Effects on the Feminisation of Offices 429
- 6 The Conditions of Labour Mobilisation..... 431
- 7 Conclusion 432

Chapter 15

The Division of Labour between Centre and Periphery in Industrial Networks: The Case of Galicia, Spain

(Dietrich Hoss and Roberto Herranz)	437
1 Galicia: Another „Industrial District“?	437
2 Small- and Medium-Sized Enterprises in Spain	439
3 Industrial Development in the Semi-Rural Context of Galicia	440
4 Four Case Studies: Some Cross-Industrial Results	442
5 The Cooperatives — A New Production Model	446
6 Alternatives of Future Development	451
7 Conclusion	454

Chapter 16

Frictions in the New Division of Labour: Cooperation between Producers and Suppliers in the German Automobile Industry

(Egon Endres and Theo Wehner)	457
1 Introduction	457
2 Change in Supplier Relations and Inter-Firm Cooperation	458
3 The Connection between Firm and Inter-Firm Organisational Structures	462
4 The Limits of Inter-Firm Cooperation	464
5 Inter-Firm Cooperation and Coordination as a Cyclical Process	467
6 Conclusion	470

Chapter 17

Technological Change and Work Relations in the British Coal Mining Industry (John Tomaney and Jonathan Winterton)

(John Tomaney and Jonathan Winterton)	473
1 Introduction	473
2 Crises and Restructuring	474
3 The North East: A Productivity Miracle in a Declining Coalfield ...	478
4 Selby: A Post-Fordist Coal Mine?	482
5 Conclusion	487

Chapter 18

Job Redesign at Finnish Shipyards — Causes and Consequences (Jukka Niemelä and Heikki Leimu)

(Jukka Niemelä and Heikki Leimu)	491
1 Introduction	491

2	The Crisis of the Labour Process in the Finnish Shipbuilding Industry	494
3	The Repertoire of Job Redesign	498
4	The Scope and Scale of Job Redesign	500
5	Conclusions	503
Notes on Contributors		509