

Contents

---

1. Interaction of Person/Group–Organization–Environment	1
Henk Thierry
2. Theories of Organization	5
Peter Veen and Ton Korver
Introduction	5
Four traditional approaches	5
An area of tension: Relationships among individual–organization– environment	12
Control and decision making	21
Goals and dialectics	28
Conclusion	32
3. Structural Contingency Theory	39
Johannes M. Pennings
Introduction	39
Niche in current organization theory	40
Background	43
The theory	45
Galbraith	47
Operational definition of concepts	49
Empirical verification	49
Methodological problems	50
New developments	52
Practical aspects	55
Conclusion and discussion	57
4. Developments in Socio-Technical Systems Design (STSD)	61
Frans M. van Eijnatten
Introduction	61
Methodological starting-points	62

Aspects regarding content	62
Towards a division based on phases	63
Highlights in the development of STSD	65
The Tavistock episode	65
Classical STSD in Europe	66
Classical STSD developments in The Netherlands	69
Modern STSD in different continents	71
Modern STSD developments in Australia	71
Modern STSD developments in Scandinavia	74
STSD developments in the United States and Canada	75
STSD developments in The Netherlands	75
STSD at the end of the 20th century	82
5. Interorganizational Networks	89
Maarten R. van Gils
Introduction	89
Interorganizational relations and interorganizational networks	92
Theoretical directions	93
Interorganizational cooperation	102
Epilogue	109
6. Organizational Culture	113
Jaap J. van Muijen
Introduction	113
Perspectives of organizational culture	114
Structural functionalism	116
Ethnography	117
Organizational culture	118
Organizational climate	122
The competing-values model of organizational culture and a case study of organizational culture and climate	125
In conclusion	128
7. Organizational Psychology in a Cross-cultural Perspective	133
Pieter J.D. Drenth and Ben Groenendijk
Introduction	133
General frame of reference	134
Methodological problems	136
Culture and attitudes	140
Differences between organizations	143
Culture and convergence	148
Synthesis	153
Conclusion	154

8. Planned Change in Organizations and Organizational Development in the 1990s	161
René van der Vlist
Introduction	161
The necessity of fundamental changes in organizations	162
Planned change, organizational development, and the study of change	168
Design or development?	172
Organizational change: evolution or revolution?	174
Resistance to change: The role of representatives of the professional staff and (lower) supervisory staff	178
Cultural barriers for organizational change	180
Recent developments	184
Summary	187
9. Assessment of Organizational Change	193
Henk Thierry, Paul L. Koopman, and Dick de Gilder
Introduction	193
Domain	195
Assessment of organizational change: Methods and instruments	203
Phases in "assessment" of organizational change	211
"Assessment" of organizational change in perspective	221
10. The Levers of Organizational Change: Facilitators and Inhibitors	229
Frank Heller
Introduction	229
The nature of natural resistance	230
Dependency	231
Dispositional or genetic stability	232
Technology as an agent of change	233
The role of formal and informal structures	234
Crisis, the environment, and change	235
Change or stagnation?	238
Phases and contingencies	239
Organizational intervention	241
Large-scale change projects	243
Meta-analysis of change	244
Change under turbulence	245
Conjectures and conclusions	246
11. Motivation and Satisfaction	253
Henk Thierry
Introduction	253
Motivation	255
Satisfaction	275
Conclusion	284

12. Compensating Work	291
Henk Thierry
Introduction	291
Psychological theories about pay	292
Meanings of pay	300
Pay systems	306
Conclusion	315
13. Leadership: Theories and Models	321
Erik J.H. Andriessen and Pieter J.D. Drenth
Introduction	321
Premises	322
Perspectives on organizations	323
Leadership traits and leadership styles	326
Characteristics of modern leadership approaches	331
A few recent theories	338
Finally: a comprehensive model	347
14. Complex Decision-making in Organizations	357
Paul L. Koopman, Jan Willem Broekhuijsen, and André F.M. Wierdsma
Introduction	357
Views of decision-making	358
Phasing and process rationality	363
The context	368
The manager in decision-making	373
Tools in decision-making	377
15. Effective Communication within the Organization	387
Gaston de Cock, Karel de Witte, and Stef van Nieuwerkerke
Introduction	387
Constituent elements of the communication process	387
The organization based on communication	395
Communication from the perspective of organizational climate	395
General conclusions	399
16. Industrial Democratization and Industrial Relations	401
J.H. Erik Andriessen
Introduction	401
Why codetermination?	403
Industrial relations	405
Strategies and structures of codetermination	408
Participation in The Netherlands	411
Alternative forms of organization	415
How works councils work	418

---

Attitudes of employees	422
Perspectives	424
17. Automation: Socio-organizational Aspects	429
Paul L. Koopman and Jen A. Algera
Introduction	429
Forms of automation	429
Societal context	432
Automation in strategic policy	434
Management of automation projects	444
The role of the work and organizational psychologist	451
18. Transformation to a Market Economy: The Case of Poland	461
Stanisława Borkowska and Jolanta Kulpińska
Characteristics of transformation—the starting point	461
Goals, ways, and barriers in the transformations	462
Basic economic effects of transformation affecting society	466
Interpretations	476
Conclusions	481
Author Index	485
Subject Index	495