

PREFACE TO THE FIFTH EDITION	page xi
DEDICATION	xiii
PART ONE GENERAL INTRODUCTION	1
CHAPTER 1 ROLE AND DEVELOPMENT OF MARKETING RESEARCH	3
1.1 Introduction	3
1.2 Discrimination in data	5
1.3 Definition of marketing research	5
1.4 Evolution of marketing research	7
1.5 Sources of marketing research theory and practice	11
1.6 Scope of marketing research	13
1.7 Main divisions of marketing research	15
1.8 Complexity of buying behaviour	25
1.9 Summary	25
Review and discussion questions	26
References	26
PART TWO BASIC TECHNIQUES	29
CHAPTER 2 METHODOLOGIES OF MARKETING RESEARCH	31
2.1 Developing a research design	31
2.2 Three types of research design	32
2.3 Sequential stages of marketing research	35
2.4 Classification of data	39
2.5 Main categories of research techniques	39
2.6 Desirability of combining survey techniques	40
2.7 Primary data – observation	44
2.8 Primary data – experimentation	46
2.9 Primary data – questionnaires	51
2.10 Secondary data – internal	53
2.11 Secondary data – external	53
2.12 Summary	64

	Review and discussion questions	65
	References	65
CHAPTER 3	INTRODUCTION TO SAMPLING	67
	3.1 Definitions	67
	3.2 Origin of sampling	69
	3.3 The theory of sampling	71
	3.4 Essentials for sound estimators	72
	3.5 Confidence intervals	73
	3.6 Sampling frames	75
	3.7 Summary	82
	Review and discussion questions	82
	References	82
CHAPTER 4	TYPES OF SAMPLING	84
	4.1 Probability sampling (random sampling)	84
	4.2 Non-probability sampling	96
	4.3 Socio-economic classifications	101
	4.4 Summary	106
	Review and discussion questions	106
	References	106
CHAPTER 5	CHARACTERISTICS OF SAMPLES	108
	5.1 Sample design	108
	5.2 Facets of sampling surveys	108
	5.3 Sample size	111
	5.4 Design factor	117
	5.5 Design effect	118
	5.6 Normal distribution	118
	5.7 Finite population correction	124
	5.8 Z values	124
	5.9 Sample size does not guarantee accuracy	125
	5.10 Summary	126
	Review and discussion questions	126
	References	127
CHAPTER 6	QUESTIONNAIRES	128
	6.1 Introduction	128
	6.2 Planning the questionnaire	129
	6.3 Question requirements	129
	6.4 Bias in questions	132
	6.5 Question order effects	132
	6.6 Question sequence	133
	6.7 Types of question	136
	6.8 Pilot testing	139
	6.9 Mail questionnaires	141
	6.10 Telephone questionnaires	148
	6.11 Developments in television surveys	151
	6.12 Interactive television polling	155
	6.13 Summary	156

	Review and discussion questions	156
	References	157
CHAPTER 7	INTERVIEWING	161
	7.1 Introduction	161
	7.2 Definition of interview	161
	7.3 Forms of interview	162
	7.4 Interviewing techniques adjusted to types of respondent	163
	7.5 Interviewers	164
	7.6 Duties of interviewers	167
	7.7 Characteristics of interviewers	169
	7.8 Interviewer effect	169
	7.9 Other sources of bias	173
	7.10 Bias from non-response	174
	7.11 Summary	176
	Review and discussion questions	176
	References	176
CHAPTER 8	QUALITATIVE RESEARCH AND ATTITUDE RESEARCH	178
	8.1 Introduction	178
	8.2 Techniques of qualitative research	181
	8.3 Can consumer marketing research develop new products?	190
	8.4 Principal methods of researching consumer products	190
	8.5 Modified approach to qualitative research	192
	8.6 Attitude research	192
	8.7 Types of scales	193
	8.8 Principal scaling methods	195
	8.9 Kelly's personal construct theory	203
	8.10 Summary	206
	Review and discussion questions	206
	References	207
PART THREE	SPECIFIC RESEARCH APPLICATIONS	211
CHAPTER 9	CONTINUOUS MARKETING RESEARCH	213
	9.1 Panels	213
	9.2 Consumer purchase panels	214
	9.3 Panel methodology	215
	9.4 American consumer panels	216
	9.5 British consumer panels	216
	9.6 Telephone panels	221
	9.7 Use of panels in forecasting	222
	9.8 Shop audit version of panel research	223
	9.9 Back-up services	226
	9.10 Technological advances in store audits	227
	9.11 Omnibus surveys	229
	9.12 Summary	231
	Review and discussion questions	231
	References	231

CHAPTER 10	TEST MARKETING	233
	10.1 Introduction	233
	10.2 Failure of new products	235
	10.3 Markets change over time	237
	10.4 Sequential approach to test marketing	238
	10.5 New approaches to test marketing	246
	10.6 Summary	249
	Review and discussion questions	250
	References	250
CHAPTER 11	ADVERTISING RESEARCH	251
	11.1 Introduction	251
	11.2 Theories of advertising influence	252
	11.3 Aspects of advertising research	256
	11.4 Advertising content research	257
	11.5 Advertising media research	259
	11.6 Advertising effectiveness research	273
	11.7 Summary	298
	Review and discussion questions	299
	References	299
CHAPTER 12	INDUSTRIAL MARKETING RESEARCH	302
	12.1 Introduction	302
	12.2 Industrial buying behaviour	302
	12.3 Definition of industrial marketing research	308
	12.4 Principal characteristics of industrial marketing research	309
	12.5 Desk research (secondary data)	309
	12.6 Official industry classification	310
	12.7 Primary research	313
	12.8 Summary	322
	Review and discussion questions	322
	References	323
CHAPTER 13	INTERNATIONAL MARKETING RESEARCH	325
	13.1 Introduction	325
	13.2 Need for marketing research	327
	13.3 Preliminary evaluation	327
	13.4 Typical approaches	328
	13.5 Desk research	329
	13.6 Government assistance in the UK	329
	13.7 Scope of investigations	333
	13.8 BETRO Report on Foreign Language Proficiency	339
	13.9 Research methodology	340
	13.10 Principal methods of organizing research	344
	13.11 Appraisal of opportunities	346
	13.12 Organization of overseas operation	346
	13.13 Summary	347
	Review and discussion questions	347
	References	348

CHAPTER 14	MARKETING RESEARCH FOR SERVICES	350
14.1	Introduction	350
14.2	Classification of services	352
14.3	The changing financial services scene	353
14.4	Financial marketing research	355
14.5	Travel and leisure research	358
14.6	Public sector services	359
14.7	Social research activities	362
14.8	Three general contributions of survey data	365
14.9	New horizons of marketing research	365
14.10	Summary	368
	Review and discussion questions	369
	References	369
PART FOUR	DATA HANDLING AND INTERPRETATION	371
CHAPTER 15	STATISTICAL ANALYSIS	373
15.1	Tests of hypotheses and significance	373
15.2	Bi-variate analysis	386
15.3	Multi-variate analysis	391
15.4	Summary	396
	Review and discussion questions	396
	References	397
CHAPTER 16	FINAL STAGES OF THE SURVEY	399
16.1	Editing	399
16.2	Coding	400
16.3	Tabulation	401
16.4	Computers	402
16.5	Use of weights	403
16.6	Analysis and interpretation	404
16.7	Presentation of the survey report	406
16.8	Composition of the report	407
16.9	Final stages of preparing and presenting the report	409
16.10	Buying marketing research	410
16.11	MRS Code of Conduct	412
16.12	Data Protection Act	414
16.13	Quality standards in marketing research	415
16.14	Briefing research organizations	416
16.15	Interpreting and using marketing research findings	417
16.16	Managerial attitudes to marketing research	417
16.17	Costing marketing research	418
16.18	Summary	420
	Review and discussion questions	420
	References	421
Appendix 1	CASE STUDY: Role of marketing research in development of NatWest financial services	422
INDEX		427