

Table of Contents

Preface

Summary

1. Introduction	1
2. The Current Occupational Health and Safety Situation	1
Major production changes are taking place...	1
Greater emphasis needs to be given to productivity and market access gains from OHS investments...	5
Existing data suggests high risk areas...	6
Within the same sector, different SADC countries have different reported risks...	9
Managing risks requires improved equipment and procedures...	12
There is a substantial underestimate of occupational disease...	14
Beyond the workplace, other groups are exposed to occupational risks...	17
Occupational morbidity costs over 3% of GDP...	17
3. Issues Arising and Areas for Future Work	19
High risks, low resources implies a need for effective action...	19
Bibliography	23
Appendix A: Example of Questions for a Module on Occupational Injury, Illness and Fatality	27