
Contents

Acknowledgments

xvii

Part I. Orientation

Chapter 1.	The “Big Three” Model of Change	3
	Roadblocks to Progress: The Change Problem	5
	What Is Change?	9
	The Importance of Motion: An Action View of Organizations	12
	The “Big Three” Model: Three Kinds of Motion, Three Forms of Change, Three Roles in the Change Process	14
	Looking Back or Looking Forward?: Multiple Possibilities and the Opportunities for Managers	17

Part II. Change When?

Chapter 2.	Organizations and Environments in Motion: The Nature and Scope of Change Pressures	23
	Environmental Forces: Adaptation and Choice	25
	Life Cycles, “Growth,” and Organic Change Pressures	34
	Political Conflicts and Economic Interests: The Struggle for Control	46

	Integrating the Forces	55
	Mastering Emergent Change: Lessons for Leaders	56
Chapter 3.	Fitting or Creating the Environment: "Macro-Evolutionary" Change	63
	Introductory Notes	63
	"Rockport Shoe Company: The Evolution of the Katz Family Business," by James A. Phills, Jr.	69
	"Banc One Corporation: Anticipatory Evolution," by Paul S. Myers and Rosabeth Moss Kanter	80
	"The Sweater Trade, From Hong Kong to New York," by James Lardner	92
	"Keeping Up with the Information: On-line in the Philippines and London," by John Maxwell Hamilton	108
Chapter 4.	Growing and Aging: "Micro-Evolutionary" Change	125
	Introductory Notes	125
	"The Rise and Fall of an Entrepreneur," by Thomas R. Ittleson	129
	Hypergrowth and Transition at Apple Computer:
	"Diary of a Middle Manager," by Donna Dubinsky	145
	"Jobs Talks About His Rise and Fall," by Gerald C. Lubenow and Michael Rogers	151
	"John Sculley's Lessons from Inside Apple," by Steven Pearlstein and Lucien Rhodes	154
	"The Big Store: Sears in Maturity," by Donald R. Katz	159
Chapter 5.	Power and Politics: "Revolutionary Change"	173
	Introductory Notes	173
	"Power, Greed, and Glory on Wall Street," by Ken Auletta	177
	"Champagne Shoot-out in France," by Keith Wheatley	192

War and Peace at the Bottom:
“War and Peace: Labor Relations at Two Steelmakers,” by Thomas F. O’Boyle and Terence Roth	197
“Class Consciousness Raising,” by Stanley W. Angrist	203
“Weirton to Seek Cuts in Its Work Force,” by Pamela Gaynor	206

Part III. Change What?

Chapter 6.	Change in Form, Forms of Change	211
	Organizational Identity and Change at the Boundaries	212
	Size, Shape, and Habits: Changing Structure and Culture	225
	The Drama of Control Change: Ownership, Governance, and Stakeholder Voice	233
	A Note on Crisis Management	243
	Managerial Implications of Changes in Organizational Form	246
Chapter 7.	Restructuring and Redefining Boundaries: Identity Change	251
	Introductory Notes	251
	“Reinventing an Italian Chemical Company: Montedison 1986,” by Joseph L. Bower, Neil Monnery, and William O. Ingle	254
	“The Human Side of Mergers: The Western–Delta Story,” by Cynthia A. Ingols and Paul S. Myers	268
	“The Feudal World of Japanese Manufacturing,” by Kuniyasu Sakai	276
Chapter 8.	Shaping Up, Skinnying Down, and Revitalizing: Coordination and “Culture” Change	286
	Introductory Notes	286

Two CEOs on Change in Form:
“The Logic of Global Business: An Interview with ABB’s Percy Barnevik,” by William Taylor	289
“Championing Change: An Interview with Bell Atlantic’s Raymond Smith,” by Rosabeth Moss Kanter	302
“Driving Quality at Ford,” by Greg Easterbrook	316
“The Case of the Downsizing Decision,” by Barry A. Stein	324
Chapter 9. Makeover Through Takeover: Control Change	334
Introductory Notes	334
“Lucky Stores: Restructuring to Survive the Takeover Threat,” by Lisa Richardson and Alistair Williamson	337
“Lessons from a Middle Market LBO: The Case of O. M. Scott,” by George P. Baker and Karen H. Wruck	349

Part IV. Change How?

Chapter 10. The Challenges of Execution: Roles and Tasks in the Change Process	369
The Messy Terrain of Change	371
The Changemakers: Strategists, Implementors, Recipients	375
Ships Passing in the Day: How Views of Change Differ	381
Ten Commandments for Executing Change	382
Charting a Course for Change	386
Responding to Situational Requirements	391
Chapter 11. Sensing the Environment, Creating Visions: Change Strategists	395
Introductory Notes	395

“Northwest Airlines Confronts Change,” by Susan Rosegrant and Todd Jick	398
Behind the Steering Wheel at General Motors, 1985–90:
“The Innovator,” by Cary Reich	406
“How I Would Turn Around GM,” by Ross Perot	409
“The Painful Reeducation of a Company Man: An Interview with Roger Smith,” by Business Monthly	414
“Advice for G.M.’s Bob Stempel,” by Paul Judge	416
“Bob Galvin and Motorola, Inc.,” by Todd Jick and Mary Gentile	420
Chapter 12. Action Tools and Execution Dilemmas: Change Implementors	429
Introductory Notes	429
“The Dilemmas of a Changemaker,” by William Shea	432
“Three in the Middle: The Experience of Making Change at Micro Switch,” by Susan Rosegrant and Todd Jick	439
“Toward a Boundary-less Firm at General Electric,” by Mark Potts	450
“British Air’s Profitable Private Life,” by Steve Lohr	456
Chapter 13. Angered or Energized?: Change Recipients	460
Introductory Notes	460
“IBM’s Blue Mood Employees,” by Paul B. Carroll	463
“Takeover: A Tale of Loss, Change, and Growth,” by Dwight Harshbarger	467
“GE Keeps Those Ideas Coming,” by Thomas A. Stewart	474
“Downsizing: One Manager’s Personal Story,” by Amy Levy	483

Part V. Action

Chapter 14. Where to Begin	489
Why Organizations Succeed: Assessing Change Strategy	490
When Organizational Change Works: Building the Future Through Understanding the Past	495
Making It Happen and Making It Stick	508
Getting Started	516
 Index	 521