

Preface	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii

PART I

1 Economic integration in Europe	3
1-1 Economic relationships	3
1-2 Types of economic integration	3
1-3 Brief characterization of the EU	6
1-4 Future prospects	10
1-5 Plan of the book	13

PART II

2 The traditional theories of customs unions and single commodity markets	17
2-1 Creating a customs union and single market for commodities	17
2-2 The traditional theory of customs union: an overview	19
2-3 A small country in a small customs union	21
2-4 Terms of trade effects	25
2-5 Visible versus invisible trade barriers	28
2-6 Welfare effects of removing invisible trade barriers	30
2-7 Empirical evidence	32
3 New trade theories and the integration of commodity markets	35
3-1 Introduction	35
3-2 Competition effect	36
3-3 Market size and product variation	44
3-4 Firm size and the extent of the market	49
3-5 The effects of the single market for commodities	51
3-6 Concluding remarks	52
4 Common market theory	55
4-1 Free factor mobility	55
4-2 Customs unions with foreign capital investment	56

4-3	Free mobility of goods and factor rewards	57
4-4	Free factor mobility in a single market	58
4-5	Movements of capital and labour in the EU	64
4-6	Multinationals, foreign direct investments and economic integration	67
4-7	Summary	74
5	Dynamic and spatial effects of integration	76
5-1	Introduction	76
5-2	Integration and capital accumulation	77
5-3	Specialization, economies of scale and growth	82
5-4	Dynamic effects from a microeconomic perspective	88
5-5	The regional effects of integration	91
5-6	Final remarks	95
6	Microeconomic policies	97
6-1	Regulation: efficiency versus distribution	97
6-2	Agricultural policy	98
6-3	Competition policy	103
6-4	Industrial subsidies	108
6-5	External trade policy	110
6-6	Microeconomic policies and the subsidiarity principle	115
PART III
7	Monetary integration theory	121
7-1	Perspectives on a monetary union	121
7-2	Microeconomic efficiency	123
7-3	Seigniorage	128
7-4	Macroeconomic stability	133
7-5	A common currency or national currencies	137
7-6	Concluding comments	138
8	Economic policy in a monetary union	141
8-1	Framework and assumptions	141
8-2	The Levin model	142
8-3	Co-ordination of economic policy	147
8-4	Dynamic exchange rate expectations	149
8-5	Interdependence	152
8-6	Flexible prices	153
8-7	Concluding remarks	160
	Appendix: The Levin model	161

9	Monetary and fiscal policy in the Maastricht Treaty	164
9-1	Overall goals of macroeconomic policy	164
9-2	The theory of central bank autonomy	167
9-3	Output stabilization versus price stability	170
9-4	Fiscal discipline	172
9-5	Blueprint for a fiscal stabilization mechanism	174
9-6	Fiscal policy co-ordination	177
9-7	Concluding remarks	178
10	The process towards a European Monetary Union	181
10-1	The choice of exchange rate regime	181
10-2	Currency co-operation before 1979	183
10-3	The European Monetary System	185
10-4	The convergence criteria	192
10-5	EMU and future prospects for integration	195
	Bibliography	198
	Index	204