

CONTENTS

(a more detailed breakdown of contents is provided at the beginning of most chapters)

PREFACE	3
CONTENTS	5
LIST OF TABLES	11
LIST OF CHARTS	17
INTRODUCTION	21
PART I
TAX DEVELOPMENTS IN
OECD COUNTRIES BETWEEN
1965 AND 1992	25
Chapter 1
An introduction to the recent
wave of tax reforms	27
A. Summary of longer-term developments	27
B. Problems addressed since the mid-eighties	30
C. Conflicting objectives	33
D. Political problems in implementing tax reform	35
E. Constraints on radical tax reform	36
F. Solutions adopted during the eighties	38
G. Possible tax reform for the nineties	39

Chapter 2

A first general survey of tax revenue developments in OECD countries

	43
A. Introduction	44
B. Some generalisations	46
C. Some explanatory factors	51
D. Fishing expeditions	54
E. Limitations on international comparisons	59

Chapter 3

Tax levels and tax structures in 1989 and changes since 1965

	65
A. Tax levels and structures in 1989	65
B. Developments in total tax ratios between 1965 and 1989	71
C. Developments in the tax ratios of the main revenue sources between 1965 and 1989	81
D. Developments in the tax mix between 1965 and 1989	87
E. Postscript: total tax ratios in 1990 and estimates for 1991	91

Chapter 4

Some country comparisons of tax revenue developments between 1965 and 1989

	95
A. Introduction	95
B. The five non-European OECD countries plus Switzerland	96
C. Five Southern European countries: France, Greece, Italy, Portugal and Spain	96
D. The five OECD countries with the highest total tax ratios: Belgium, Denmark, the Netherlands, Norway and Sweden	98
E. Two disparate European countries: Germany and Ireland	99
F. The United Kingdom: a special case	100
G. Summary	102
H. Charts illustrating countries' tax structures	102

PART II
SOME ANALYTICAL AND POLICY ISSUES	107
Chapter 5
Irrationalities	109
A. Summary	109
B. Systematic ambiguity	110
C. Newspeak ambiguity and persuasive definitions	111
D. Arbitrary ambiguity	113
E. The relevance of tax shifting	113
F. Tax illusions	113
Chapter 6
Tax policy and public sector developments	115
A. Introduction and summary	115
B. Higher government spending versus lower taxes	117
C. Tax expenditures versus direct expenditures	126
Chapter 7
Some economic and social issues	133
A. Summary	134
B. Taxation and household savings	136
C. Taxation and income distribution	139
D. Taxation and energy policy	145
E. Taxation and the environment	154
F. The taxation of small to medium enterprises	165
Chapter 8
Financing social security benefits	167
A. Introduction	168
B. The compulsory social insurance versus the income support approach	170
C. Arguments for and against earmarking revenues and taxing payroll	174
D. Policy choices under earmarked payroll taxes	177
E. Country practices	179

Chapter 9
Financing sub-central government expenditure	185
A. Introduction	186
B. Fiscal federalism: the agency versus the local autonomy approach	187
C. The various ways of financing state and local government expenditures	190
D. The assignment of taxes between different levels of government	197
E. A survey of existing state and local taxes	200
F. An evaluation of taxes used for financing state and local expenditure	210

PART III
THE DESIGN AND REFORM OF PARTICULAR TAXES 213

Chapter 10
The personal income tax	215
A. Introduction and overview	216
B. The mechanisms of the personal income tax	223
C. The income tax base	227
D. The income tax schedule	237
E. Work supply and family taxation	248
F. The 18 comparative tables	263

Chapter 11
Taxes on the net wealth, capital transfers and capital gains of individuals	289
A. Summary	290
B. Net wealth taxes	296
C. Capital transfer taxes	302
D. Capital gains taxes	312

Chapter 12
Corporation income taxes and other taxes on business	323
A. Summary	324

B. The tax base	332
C. Tax rates	338
D. The taxation of distributed profits	342
E. Taxes on business other than corporation income tax	363
 Chapter 13
Consumption Taxation	367
A. Introduction	368
B. The choice of VAT as a general consumption tax	375
C. Policy options under VAT	394
D. The major excises	415
 Chapter 14
Recurrent taxes on immovable property	427
A. Introduction	427
B. The tax base and coverage	429
C. Economic and social issues	434
 APPENDIX	443
 A. Glossary of terms and expressions	447
 B. Annex to Chapter 2E on methodology and limitations	453
 C. Annex to Chapter 6C on defining and measuring tax expenditures	465
 D. Annex to Chapter 12D on terminological aspects of the taxation of distributed profits	469
 E. Bibliography	473
 F. Name index	495
 G. Subject index	499

LIST OF TABLES

Table 1.1:	Personal income tax changes and proposals between 1986 and 1992 relating to base and rate schedule	41
Table 1.2:	Corporate income tax changes and proposals between 1986 and 1992 relating to base and rate schedule	42
Table 2.1:	The OECD classification of taxes	45
Table 2.2:	Receipts from total taxes and the main taxes as a percentage of GDP at market prices, 1965, 75, 82, 89	48
Table 2.3:	Receipts from particular taxes as a percentage of total tax receipts, 1965, 75, 82, 89	50
Table 2.4:	Receipts from taxes on goods and services as a percentage of total private consumption and GDP at market prices, 1965 and 1985	62
Table 2.5:	Some adjustment of tax levels for 1982	63
Table 3.1:	Deviations from average total tax ratios in 1989	68
Table 3.2:	Exceptionally high and low tax ratios in 1989	69
Table 3.3:	Exceptionally high and low sources of revenue in 1989	70
Table 3.4:	Total tax ratios 1965-89	71
Table 3.5:	Amount and timing of highest tax ratio until 1989	74
Table 3.6:	Convergence and divergence of total tax ratios	76
Table 3.7:	Tax buoyancy and marginal tax ratios 1965-89, 1975-89, 1985-89	79
Table 3.8:	Summary table of convergence and divergence of particular tax ratios between various countries and over various periods	85
Table 3.9:	Summary of long-term, medium-term and short-term convergence and divergence of particular tax ratios	86

Table 3.10:	Largest shifts in tax levels, 1965-89, 1975-89, 1982-89	87
Table 3.11:	Changes in the unweighted OECD average of particular tax shares in total tax revenues, 1965, 1975, 1982, 1989	89
Table 3.12:	Largest shifts in tax structures, 1965-89, 1975-89, 1982-89	90
Table 3.13:	Total tax ratios, 1987-1991 with revisions for 1987 to 1989	92
Table 6.1:	Trends in general government net lending in selected OECD countries, 1960-1982	121
Table 6.2:	General government financial balances, 1986-1993	122
Table 6.3:	Table of contents of Taxpayers' rights and obligations (OECD 1990)	125
Table 6.4:	A brief overview of tax relief and expenditure accounts in selected countries	132
Table 7.1:	Private and government net saving as a percentage of GDP, 1976-1980 and 1981-1985	135
Table 7.2:	The distribution of taxpayers over the income tax schedule	144
Table 7.3:	Percentage of taxes in gasoline prices, 1978-1991	146
Table 7.4:	Percentage of taxes in automotive diesel oil prices, 1978-1991	147
Table 7.5:	Implicit carbon excise, 1988	161
Table 7.6:	The mechanical effect of a $100 tax per ton of carbon on energy prices, 1988	162
Table 8.1:	Simplified summary of rates of social security contributions in 13 countries with traditional schedular systems, 1989	183
Table 9.1:	A ranking of sources by the degree of fiscal autonomy normally provided to state and local government	187
Table 9.2:	Revenues received by state and local government	193
Table 9.3:	The share of tax revenues allocated to different levels of government, 1955, 1975, 1980, 1989	194
Table 9.4:	Tax revenues of the main state and local taxes as a percentage of total tax revenues of these levels of government, 1975, 1980, 1989	195

Table 9.5:	Discretion of state and local governments over the property tax base	203
Table 9.6:	Administrative responsibilities of different levels of governments under property taxes	204
Table 9.7:	Features of state and local government personal income taxes, 1990	205
Table 9.8:	Relative importance of state and local income taxes, 1980 and 1988	206
Table 10.1:	Summary of income subject to tax in OECD countries	263
Table 10.2:	Tax units for earned and unearned income, 1992, and changes since 1970	266
Table 10.3:	Methods of giving standard basic reliefs, 1990	267
Table 10.4:	Methods of giving standard reliefs for marriage and children, 1990	268
Table 10.5:	Standard reliefs (basic, marriage and children) under individual taxation, 1990	269
Table 10.6:	Standard reliefs (basic, marriage and children) under joint taxation, 1990	271
Table 10.7:	Other standard reliefs, 1990	272
Table 10.8:	The deductibility of interest payments, 1990	274
Table 10.9:	Main non-standard reliefs (other than deductibility of interest payments), 1990	275
Table 10.10:	Reliefs for specific sources of income, 1990	276
Table 10.11:	The tax treatment of certain fringe benefits, 1986	278
Table 10.12:	The tax treatment of pension and life insurance contributions, 1989	279
Table 10.13:	The tax treatment of income in respect of owner-occupied property, 1989	281
Table 10.14:	Main non-standard tax reliefs (including work-related expenses) received by an APW, 1987-1990	282
Table 10.15:	Rate schedules of central government income tax, 1975, 1985 and 1992	285
Table 10.16:	Statutory and effective average tax rates at the level of an average production worker (APW) earnings: married couple with two children, 1989	286
Table 10.17:	Indexation of rate schedules and/or reliefs, 1978-1990	287
Table 10.18:	Income tax and social security contributions paid in April 1985 and 1990 by an APW	288

Table 11.1:	Receipts from capital taxes on individuals as a percentage of total tax revenues, 1965, 1975, 1982	292
Table 11.2:	Forms of capital and capital gains taxation in OECD countries, first introduced and at 1 January 1990	293
Table 11.3:	Rates and thresholds of net wealth taxes 1976, 1986, 1991	300
Table 11.4:	The net wealth tax base, April 1986	301
Table 11.5:	Rates and thresholds of death and gift taxes in countries with estate taxes, 1976 to 1986	307
Table 11.6:	Rates and thresholds in countries with inheritance taxes, January 1976 and April 1986	308
Table 11.7:	Gift taxes in countries with inheritance taxes, April 1986	311
Table 11.8:	Rates and thresholds of capital gains taxes, at 1 January 1990	317
Table 11.9:	Capital gains tax treatment regarding death and gifts, April 1986	319
Table 11.10:	Summary of capital gains tax treatment of some specific assets, April 1986	321
Table 12.1:	Corporate income tax changes and proposals between 1986 and 1992 relating to base and rate schedule	329
Table 12.2:	Corporation tax collection lags, January 1991	333
Table 12.3:	The treatment of corporate capital gains, January 1991	334
Table 12.4:	Depreciation systems, January 1991	336
Table 12.5:	Statutory corporation tax rates, at 1 January 1991	339
Table 12.6:	Changes in the rate structure of corporate income tax of central government between 1986 and 1991	341
Table 12.7:	A classification of the tax treatment of distributed profits at central government level, January 1992	345
Table 12.8:	Country changes in the taxation of distributed profits, 1962 to 1991	346
Table 12.9:	Corporation tax rates compared to personal income tax rates on dividends and interest	347
Table 12.10:	Comparison of a possible dividend deduction and partial imputation system	356
Table 12.11:	Summary of certain features of imputation systems for corporation tax paid, at 1 January 1991	360
Table 12.12:	A comparison of imputation systems with three non-existent systems	364

Table 13.1:	General consumption tax systems, at 1 January 1967 and 1992	369
Table 13.2:	Classification of consumption taxes and their revenue importance, 1989	371
Table 13.3:	A summary of possible types of VAT systems	377
Table 13.4:	Illustration of RST and VAT collection mechanisms and revenue flows to the government	380
Table 13.5:	The revenue buoyancy of VAT compared to that of other general consumption taxes, 1975, 1985 and 1989	387
Table 13.6:	Development of standard rates of tax in first generation VAT countries	390
Table 13.7:	VAT rates in OECD countries, April 1992	395
Table 13.8:	VAT treatment of merit goods and services, at 1 January 1991	397
Table 13.9:	Products subject to separate excises and/or higher rates of general consumption tax, at 1 January 1991	400
Table 13.10:	VAT treatment of selected services, January 1991	403
Table 13.11:	VAT treatment of financial services and insurance and reinsurance, January 1987	404
Table 13.12:	VAT treatment of supplies of land and buildings, January 1987	406
Table 13.13:	VAT treatment of second-hand goods, January 1987	408
Table 13.14:	Small-scale trader and retailer concessions, January 1987	410
Table 13.15:	Concessions providing relief from registration, January 1987	411
Table 13.16:	Methods of apportioning inputs used for exempt purposes, January 1987	413
Table 13.17:	Valuation of supplies for private use, January 1987	414
Table 13.18:	The relative importance of the major excises on drinking, smoking and motoring, 1985	417
Table 13.19:	Changes in reliance on revenues from the major excises, 1965-1985	420
Table 13.20:	Receipts from excises on alcoholic drinks and tobacco products as a percentage of total tax receipts, 1965-88	421
Table 13.21:	Approximate total tax burden on alcoholic beverages as a percentage of retail price for home consumption	423
Table 13.22:	Taxation of popular cigarettes as a percentage of tax inclusive retail price	424

LIST OF TABLES

---

Table 14.1:	Receipts from taxes on immovable property as a percentage of total tax receipts, 1965, 1975, 1982, 1989	430
Table 14.2:	The base and coverage of recurrent taxes on immovable property	433
Table 14.3:	Exemptions and concessions for some specific assets	438
Table 14.4:	Country provisions and practices affecting the fairness of taxes on immovable property	441

LIST OF CHARTS

Chart 2.1:	Presence of some correlation between personal and corporate income tax share and GDP per capita, 1989	55
Chart 2.2:	Absence of correlation between total tax ratios and GDP per capita, 1989	56
Chart 2.3:	Presence of negative correlation between personal income tax and social security ratios, 1989	56
Chart 2.4:	Presence of positive correlation between general and selective consumption tax ratios, 1989	57
Chart 2.5:	Presence of some positive correlation between income and profits taxes ratios and total tax ratios, 1989	57
Chart 2.6:	Presence of some positive correlation between social security ratios and total tax ratios, 1989	58
Chart 2.7:	Presence of some positive correlation between consumption tax ratios and total tax ratios, 1989	58
Chart 3.1:	Total tax revenue as a percentage of GDP, 1989	66
Chart 3.2:	Tax structures according to main headings of OECD classification, 1989	66
Chart 3.3:	Unweighted average of main tax ratios, 1989	67
Chart 3.4:	Unweighted average of main tax shares in total tax receipts, 1989	67
Chart 3.5:	Unweighted total tax ratios of the 24 OECD countries between 1965 and 1989	75
Chart 3.6:	Unweighted average of the tax ratios of the main revenue sources between 1965 and 1989	82
Chart 3.7:	Unweighted average of receipts from the main revenue sources to total tax receipts between 1965 and 1989	88

Chart 4.1:	Political events as a partial explanation of changes in total tax ratios in Greece, Portugal and Spain, 1965-83	97
Chart 4.2:	United Kingdom total tax and personal income tax ratios correlated with changes of government	101
Chart 4.3:	Tax structures in OECD countries between 1965 and 1989	103
Chart 7.1:	The effect of direct tax and benefit changes between 1979 and 1988 in the United Kingdom	141
Chart 7.2:	Gasoline prices and taxes, 1978 and 1986	149
Chart 7.3:	Automotive diesel oil prices and taxes, 1978 and 1986	150
Chart 7.4:	Gasoline prices and taxes, end 1991	151
Chart 7.5:	Carbon emissions per head in EC countries, Japan and the United States (latest year)	163
Chart 7.6:	Source of carbon emissions in EC countries, Japan and the United States (latest year)	163
Chart 8.1:	Revenue structure and development of general public pension schemes in OECD countries	171
Chart 10.1:	Personal income tax revenues as a percentage of total tax revenues and GDP, 1989	218
Chart 10.2:	The unweighted OECD personal income tax ratio and share, 1955-89	218
Chart 10.3:	Non-standard income tax allowances as a percentage of income subject to tax	230
Chart 10.4:	OECD rate schedules converted by purchasing power parities, 1988	240
Chart 10.5:	Top rate of central government income tax, 1986 and 1992	242
Chart 10.6:	Income tax paid by a married APW with two children as a percentage of gross earnings, 1987, 1989 and 1990.	247

---

Chart 10.7:	Income tax plus employees' social security contributions paid by a married APW with two children as a percentage of gross earnings, 1987, 1989 and 1990.	247
Chart 13.1:	Standard rates of VAT, in starting year and April 1992	389
Chart 13.2:	Consumption of tobacco per head, 1979 to 87	418