

Contents

EMU after five years: an assessment	9
Part I — Economic developments in the early years of EMU	17
Summary	19
1. The assignment of economic policies in EMU: expectations and challenges	21
2. Assessing economic performance in the early years of EMU	24
2.1. Macroeconomic stability	24
2.2. Economic growth	25
2.3. External developments	25
2.4. Lack of robustness of domestic demand	30
3. The policy-mix	38
3.1. Expectations at the start of EMU	38
3.2. Developments in monetary policy	38
3.3. Developments in fiscal policy	39
3.4. Developments in other policy areas	40
3.5. Overall assessment of the policy-mix	41
4. The contribution of EMU to nominal convergence and real convergence	44
4.1. Expectations at the start of EMU	44
4.2. Developments in nominal convergence	45
4.3. Cyclical convergence in EMU	48
Part II — The macroeconomic policy framework	59
Summary	61
1. Monetary policy	66
1.1. The monetary policy framework in EMU	66
1.2. A monetary policy strategy for an uncertain environment	67
1.2.1. The ECB's monetary policy strategy	67
1.2.2. The ECB's definition of price stability	68
1.2.3. Analysis of the risks to price stability	70
1.3. The independence and accountability of the ECB	71
1.4. How successful has monetary policy been?	72
1.4.1. Price stability	72
1.4.2. The monetary policy response to the slowdown	73
1.4.3. The euro exchange rate	79
1.5. Enlargement and the future of ECB governance	82

Annex — The changeover to euro notes and coins	84
2. Fiscal policy	89
2.1. The EU's fiscal framework	89
2.1.1. The rationale for a rules-based fiscal framework and its main features	89
2.1.2. Expectations at the start of EMU	90
2.2. Were the deficit and debt objectives met?	91
2.2.1. Budgetary outcomes	91
2.2.2. Did the fiscal framework influence national budgetary choices?	94
2.3. Did the fiscal framework evolve effectively to deal with emerging budgetary challenges?	96
2.3.1. Efforts to improve the framework for budgetary surveillance	96
2.3.2. The debate on the conduct of fiscal policy in EMU	99
2.4. Did the budgetary framework help countries to correct budgetary imbalances?	102
2.4.1. Experiences in the initial years of EMU	102
2.4.2. Recent efforts to strengthen the framework for budgetary surveillance	103
3. Wage developments	107
3.1. Expectations regarding wage developments and wage formation in EMU	107
3.1.1. The approach to assessing wage developments and wage formation in EMU	107
3.1.2. Some recent evidence on nominal wage rigidity in Europe	108
3.2. An assessment of wage developments in the early years of EMU	108
3.2.1. Wage and unit labour cost developments	108
3.2.2. Intra-area realignments of labour cost competitiveness	111
3.2.3. Evolution of wage-bargaining systems	113
Part III — EMU and the process of financial integration	117
Summary	119
1. Expectations regarding the impact of EMU on financial markets	121
2. Structure of the euro-area financial system	124
2.1. Overview	124
2.2. Banking sector and other financial intermediaries	125
2.3. Money and financial markets	128
2.3.1. Money markets and markets for derivatives	128
2.3.2. Fixed income markets	128
2.3.3. Equity markets	131
2.3.4. Market infrastructure	132
3. Policy initiatives	134
3.1. Reforming EU financial regulation	134
3.2. Upgrading cross-border supervision	136
3.3. Improved corporate governance	136
Part IV — Market integration and structural reform in EMU	137
Summary	139
1. Product market integration	141
1.1. Expectations as regards the impact of EMU on market integration	141
1.2. Five years of experience with the euro	145
1.2.1. Trade and FDI effects	145
1.2.2. The pro-competitive effects of the single market programme	146

1.2.3. Changes in the industrial structure	148
1.2.4. Macroeconomic effects of product market integration	149
1.3. Institutional aspects: policy coordination in product markets	150
2. EMU and the labour market	153
2.1. Introduction	153
2.1.1. Expectations on the impact of EMU on labour markets	153
2.1.2. The approach to assessing the impact of EMU on labour markets	154
2.2. Labour market outcomes in EMU	155
2.3. Assessing the impact of EMU on labour markets and vice versa	160
2.3.1. Flexibility in EMU and labour market policies/institutions	160
2.3.2. Reform efforts in EMU	163
Part V — The euro in the international economy	169
Summary	171
1. Expectations at the start of EMU	173
2. The international use of the euro by the private sector	175
3. The international use of the euro by the official sector	179
4. The euro area's contribution to global policy coordination	181
4.1. Background	181
4.2. Internal coordination on external positions and exchange rate policy	181
4.3. External representation of the euro area	184
Part VI — Member States that have not yet adopted the euro	187
Summary	189
1. The old Member States outside the euro area and the question of euro membership	191
1.1. Introduction	191
1.2. Macroeconomic policy frameworks	192
1.3. The economic performance of Denmark, Sweden and the UK	193
1.4. Attitudes towards euro entry	201
2. The euro and the new Member States	204
2.1. Introduction	204
2.2. Macroeconomic performance of the new Member States	204
2.3. Structural characteristics of the new Member States	212
2.4. Challenges facing the new Member States on the road to euro adoption	218
Bibliography	223

Tables

I.1.	Macroeconomic stability indicators, euro area	24
I.2.	Main trade partners of the euro area	27
I.3.	Impact of a USD 12 increase in oil prices, euro area	27
I.4.	The impact of a 20 % drop in equity prices on real GDP growth, EU	28
I.5.	Contributions to annual growth in private consumption (2000–03, euro-area)	34
I.6.	GDP and employment, average annual growth rates (1990–2003).	35
I.7.	Decomposition of GDP growth rates, euro area and the United States (1980–2002)	37
I.8.	Budget deficits in 2000–03, euro area.	40
II.1.	Estimates of output gaps in the euro area and the United States	79
II.2.	Macroeconomic effects on the euro area of a sudden and strong euro appreciation against the US dollar	80
II.3.	Euro-area real effective exchange rate to May 2004.	81
II.4.	Nominal budget balances	93
II.5.	General government gross debt.	95
II.6.	Age-related expenditure long-term trends in EU-15 countries	100
II.7.	Long-term debt to GDP ratio in EU-15 countries	101
III.1.	Share of corporate loans in financial liabilities (1997–2002)	125
III.2.	Share of the five largest credit institutions in total assets (2002)	125
III.3.	Market share of branches and subsidiaries of foreign credit institutions	126
III.4.	Matching of firm-intermediary nationality	126
III.5.	Breakdown of the assets of the equity mutual funds operating in the euro-area countries	127
IV.1.	The effects of the SMP and EMU on EU product markets	142
IV.2.	Evolution of the production and trade specialisation of the EU Member States (1970–97)	149
IV.3.	Evolution of intra-industry trade inside the EU (1980–2001).	150
IV.4.	Employment in the EU Member States	158
IV.5.	Unemployment in the EU Member States	158
IV.6.	Job tenure of employees, 2002	159
IV.7.	Employment and unemployment in the acceding countries, 2003	160
IV.8.	Main types of labour market flexibility	161
IV.9.	Euro-area labour market reforms in response to the BEPGs, 1999–2003.	164
IV.10.	Reforms of EPL and temporary contracts, late 1990s–2003.	166
V.1.	The euro area in the world economy	173
V.2.	The euro as an international currency	174
V.3.	The share of the euro as a settlement/invoicing currency	177
V.4.	Share of the euro in international trade of acceding countries	178
V.5.	Official holdings of foreign exchange by currencies.	180
VI.1.	Growth and stability performance compared	193
VI.2.	Potential output growth and its determinants	198

VI.3.	New Member States: Population, GDP per capita and GDP levels	205
VI.4.	New Member States: Selected economic indicators	206
VI.5.	New Member States: Public finances in 2002	211
VI.6.	New Member States: Public pension expenditures in 2000–50	212
VI.7.	New Member States: Sectoral value added in 2001	213
VI.8.	New Member States: Sectoral breakdown of employment in 2001	213
VI.9.	New Member States: Labour market characteristics in 2002	214
VI.10.	Monthly labour costs per employee and unit labour costs in manufacturing	215
VI.11.	New Member States: Knowledge-based economy	216
VI.12.	New Member States: Product market reforms	218

Graphs

I.1.	Output gap	26
I.2.	Stock market prices	28
I.3.	World import demand and euro-area growth performance	29
I.4.	Investment and interest rates, euro area	31
I.5.	Non-financial corporate sector debt, euro area	32
I.6.	Household saving rate in cyclical downturns, euro area	33
I.7.	Employment performance, euro area	34
I.8.	Household actual and simulated consumption, euro area	35
I.9.	Trend growth and its components	36
I.10.	Household saving and fiscal deficit, euro area	41
I.11.	Real unit labour costs and its components	42
I.12.	US macroeconomic policies	42
I.13.	Euro-area macroeconomic policies	43
I.14.	Inflation dispersion in the euro area	45
I.15.	Inflation dispersion in the euro area and the United States	49
I.16.	Cyclical convergence in the euro area (standard deviation)	51
I.17.	Cyclical convergence in the euro area (correlation)	51
I.18.	Convergence in short-term interest rates, euro area	52
I.19.	Convergence in fiscal policy, euro area	53
I.20.	Fiscal policy in the 1992–94 downturn, euro area	53
I.21.	Fiscal policy in the 2001–03 downturn, euro area	54
I.22.	Cyclical peak and subsequent change in the output gap, euro-area Member States	55
I.23.	Real convergence in the euro area	56
I.24.	Growth and catching up in the euro area	57
II.1.	Euro-area — headline and core inflation	72
II.2.	Policy interest rates in the euro area and the United States	74
II.3.	Euro-area inflation perception	75
II.4.	Changes in perceived inflation across Member States — 2002	76
II.5.	Euro-area MCI	77
II.6.	Euro area — short-term interest rate	78

II.7.	Bilateral exchange rates USD–EUR	82
II.8.	Nominal budget balances in the euro area, 1992–98.	92
II.9.	Fiscal stance and cyclical conditions in the euro area, 1992–2003.	92
II.10.	Euro-area GDP in absence of fiscal discipline, simulation with the Commission QUEST model	95
II.11.	Stabilisation effect provided by the budget in response to a consumption shock	101
II.12.	Budget deficits and procedures launched by the Commission and the Council	102
II.13.	First year output response to a 1 % disinflationary shock.	109
II.14.	Nominal wage and unit labour cost developments	110
II.15.	Real unit labour cost developments.	110
II.16.	Real wage gap indicator (1970 = 100)	112
II.17.	Intra-euro-area effective exchange rates (1998–2005)	114
II.18.	Wage share 1995–2002 and the degree of bargaining coordination	114
II.A1.	Euro changeover scenario	84
II.A2.	Euro banknotes and coins in circulation	86
II.A3.	Euro cash payments as a share of total cash payments	86
II.A4.	Support for the euro.	87
II.A5.	The perception of inflation in the euro area	88
III.1.	Comparison of financial structures: Size of world capital markets and bank assets in 2002	124
III.2.	Dispersion in euro-area sovereign debt yields.	129
III.3.	Gross and net issuance volumes in euro-area bond markets	130
III.4.	Gross issuance of euro-denominated bonds (1999–2003).	131
IV.1.	Real trade in goods with the euro area and other EU countries	146
IV.2.	Inward foreign direct investment share of non-EMU countries into EU-15 total.	147
IV.3.	Price convergence	148
IV.4.	Unemployment in the euro area, 1992–2003	156
IV.5.	Employment in the euro area, 1992–2003.	156
IV.6.	Changes in the tax wedge, 1998–2002	165
IV.7.	Net replacement rates for a single person on a low wage, 2001–02	165
V.1.	International debt markets by currency	175
V.2.	Foreign exchange turnover by currency	176
V.3.	International bank liabilities by currency	177
V.4.	The exchange rate of the euro versus the US dollar and the yen.	184
VI.1.	Monetary and fiscal policies in Denmark, Sweden, the UK and the euro area	195
VI.2.	HICP inflation	196
VI.3.	Euro exchange rates.	197
VI.4.	Employment protection legislation (EPL) and product market regulation (PMR)	200
VI.5.	Unemployment rate	200
VI.6.	Correlation of industrial output cycles with the euro area	206
VI.7.	Harmonised consumer price index, 1997–2003	207

VI.8.	Current account balance, 1995–2002	209
VI.9.	Investment ratios, 1995–2002	210
VI.10.	Old-aged dependency ratio, 2000 and 2050	211
VI.11.	Labour productivity per person employed in 2001	215
VI.12.	Trade integration with EU-15 in 2002.....	217

Boxes

I.1.	Measures to strengthen economic governance in the euro area.....	23
I.2.	GDP and productivity performance in the euro area and the United States	35
I.3.	Shocks and adjustment	46
I.4.	Sources of inflation differences in EMU and policy implications	50
I.5.	Developments in long-term growth convergence	56
II.1.	On the disconnect between perceived and actual inflation	75
II.2.	The impact on inflation of exchange rate changes	80
II.3.	Efforts to improve the coordination of budgetary policies in EMU	105
II.4.	A real wage gap indicator for the euro area.....	112
III.1.	Financial integration and growth.....	122
III.2.	The Lamfalussy approach to EU financial regulation	135
IV.1.	The European employment strategy	155
IV.2.	The Lisbon employment targets	157
IV.3.	Reforms of employment protection legislation	164
IV.4.	The European Employment Taskforce chaired by Wim Kok	167
VI.1.	The new Member States and their transition to the euro area	220