

Contents

Notes on contributors	page ix
Preface	xi
Introduction Jeffrey C. Alexander and Piotr Sztompka	1
PART I Beyond progress and modernity	13
1 Between progress and apocalypse: social theory and the dream of reason in the twentieth century Jeffrey C. Alexander	15
2 Problems of crisis and normalcy in the contemporary world Robert Holton	39
3 The decadence of modernity: the delusions of progress and the search for historical consciousness Carlo Mongardini	53
4 The cultural code of modernity and the problem of nature: a critique of the naturalistic notion of progress Klaus Eder	67
PART II Rethinking the agents of progress	89
5 Intellectuals and progress: the origins, decline, and revival of a critical group Ron Eyerman	91
6 Progress in the distribution of power: gender relations and women's movements as a source of change Dietrich and Marilyn Rueschemeyer	106
7 The end of western trade unionism?: social progress after the age of progressivism David Kettler and Volker Meja	123
PART III Rethinking the mechanisms of progress	159
8 Secularization and sacralization Kenneth Thompson	161
9 The democratization of differentiation: on the creativity of collective action Hans Joas	182
10 The relative autonomy of élites: the absorption of protest and social progress in western democracies Eva Etzioni-Halevy	202

RETHINKING PROGRESS

PART IV	New concepts of progress	227
11	Models of directional change and human values: the theory of progress as an applied social science Stefan Nowak	229
12	Agency and progress: the idea of progress and changing theories of change Piotr Sztompka	247
	Index	265