

Table of Contents

1. Conception of This Study	1
1.1 Study Structure	1
1.2 Survey Structure	5
2. Framework	7
2.1 Strategic Orientation of the Retail Industry	7
2.2 Strategic Orientation of the CP Industry	9
2.3 Developments in Information Exchange and Information Technologies.....	11
2.4 Legal Conditions	17
3. Developments in Manufacturer-Retailer Relationships Through ECR	19
3.1 Forms of Co-operation in Retail-Oriented Activities of CP Manufacturers	19
3.2 Trade Marketing	21
3.2.1 Category Management as Basic Concept	21
3.2.2 Future Implementation of Category Management Techniques	23
3.2.2.1 Assortment Optimization	23
3.2.2.2 Promotions	25
3.2.2.2.1 Long-term Co-operative Promotion Planning Process	25
3.2.2.2.2 Theme-Based and Target-Group-Oriented Promotions	27
3.2.2.3 New Product Introductions	31
3.2.3 Changes within Sales Force as a Result - Future Tasks, Involvement and Scope	33

3 3	Supply Chain Management	35
3 3 1	Tools and Approaches for Improving the Supply Chain	35
3 3 2	Necessity of Cooperative Logistics Solutions	37
3 3 2 1	Overview	37
3 3 2 2	Pick-up Logistics vs Horizontal Cooperation	39
3 3 2 3	Horizontally and Vertically Integrated Supply Chain Solutions	41
3 3 2 4	Consumer Goods Manufacturers' Incentive Schemes to Encourage (Unilateral Cooperative) Improvement of the Supply Chain	43
3 3 3	Pull Instead of Push Logistics as the New Demand Planning Paradigm	45
3 3 3 1	VMI	45
3 3 3 2	CPFR	47
3 3 3 3	Existence of Various Planning Systems	49
3 3 4	Data Exchange as a Basis for Increasingly Cooperative Solutions	51
3 3 5	Changes in the Forecasting Process	53
3 3 6	Supply Chain Processes for Mass Customizing	55
4.	Impact of e-commerce on Business Processes and Business Models	57
5.	Impact of e-commerce on Manufacturer-Consumer Relations	65
5 1	Overview	65
5 2	Mass Customizing	67
5 2 1	Inversion of the Value Chain	67
5 2 2	The Potential of Mass Customizing and the Role of the Internet	69
5 3	Direct Selling	75

6.	e-commerce-Based Business Processes and Management Concepts Within the Retail-Oriented Organization of Consumer Goods Manufacturers	77
6 1	Potential for Virtualization Within the Cooperation	77
6 2	Partially Virtualized Trade Marketing	79
6 2 1	Internet Potential in Trade Marketing	79
6 2 2	Information Infrastructure	81
6 2 2 1	Interlinking Information	81
6 2 2 2	Industry Marketplaces	83
6 2 2 2 1	Overview	83
6 2 2 2 2	Information Offerings	85
6 2 2 2 3	Example „Handels-ExtraNet“	87
6 2 2 2 4	Example UCCnet	89
6 2 2 3	Web Portals	91
6 2 3	Partial Virtualization of the Trade Marketing Processes	93
6 2 3 1	Virtual Category Management	93
6 2 3 2	Virtual Promotion Management	95
6 2 3 3	Virtual Conditions Management	97
6 2 3 4	Virtual Maintenance and Repair Service	99
6 3	Partially Virtualized Supply Chain Management	101
6 3 1	Information Bundling	101
6 3 1 1	Information Marketplaces as Cross-Company Information Bundling	101
6 3 1 2	Real-Time Data Interchange as Optimum Design for Information Flow	103
6 3 2	Virtually Integrated Warehouses	105
6 3 3	Virtual Horizontal Cooperations in Purchasing and Logistics	107
6 3 4	Virtualization of Payment Flows	109

7. Strategic Reorientation in Retail-Oriented Management of Consumer Goods Manufacturers	111
7.1 Overview	111
7.2 Key Account Management as the Organizational Form of Strategic Customer Management	113
7.2.1 Overview	113
7.2.2 Customer Focusing through Profit Center Structures	115
7.2.3 Integration of Key Account Management and Category Management	117
7.2.4 Multifunctional Customer Development Teams	119
7.2.5 Flexibility via Virtualization	121
7.2.5.1 Virtual Customer Development Teams	121
7.2.5.2 Permanent versus Virtual Customer Teams	123
7.2.6 Increasing Complexity of the Manufacturer-Retailer Interface	125
7.2.6.1 Reciprocally Adjusted Key Account Structures	125
7.2.6.2 Breakdown of Organizational Borders	127
7.2.7 International Key Account Management	129
7.3 Partially Virtualized Customer Management	135
7.3.1 Overview	135
7.3.2 Strategic Planning and Agreement on Targets	137
7.3.3 Strategic Selling	139
7.3.3.1 Overview	139
7.3.3.2 Consumer Information as the Basis	141
7.3.3.3 Target Group-Oriented Category Management	145
7.3.3.4 Consequences for the Manufacturer's Product Management and Brand Management	149
7.3.4 Controlling Tools and Control Processes	155
7.3.4.1 Customer Databases as the Basis	155
7.3.4.2 Customer-Specific Profitability Analysis	157
7.3.5 Integrated Category Management and Customer Management in Internet-Based Business Models	161
7.3.5.1 Overview	161
7.3.5.2 The Streamline.com Model as an Ideal Form of Implementation	163