

Preface xii

Introduction: Teaching and Learning
Ethics by the Case Method 1

PART ONE

PERSONAL VALUES 17

Peter Green's First Day 19

A young man's boss expects him to give an unwarranted discount to an important sales account.

Dilemma of an Accountant 21

A junior accountant strongly disagrees on ethical grounds when his superior overrides one of his audit opinions, but the professional standards that should guide his subsequent actions are susceptible to different interpretations.

Martha McCaskey 24

When does consulting become industrial espionage—stealing the intellectual property of competitors? What can a middle-level manager do if she has doubts about her own behavior and her company's integrity?

Viking Air Compressor, Inc. 35

Conflicting views on what constitutes socially responsible corporate behavior and the means of achieving it.

Joe Camel's Mom: Marketing at R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company (A) 39

How does a top marketing executive view her creation of the "Joe Camel" advertising campaign? Recounts the outcome of the Minnesota trial and the onset of a federal suit against the tobacco industry by the Justice Department of the Clinton administration in September 1999.

PART TWO

CORPORATE VALUES: LOOKING INWARD 57

A. "Governance Issues"

The Corporate Scandals of 2002 (A): Enron, Inc. 60

The Corporate Scandals of 2002 (B):
Arthur Andersen LLP 71

The Corporate Scandals of 2002 (C): WorldCom, Inc. 78

The Corporate Scandals of 2002 (D):
Tyco International, Ltd. 82

The four most prominent U.S. corporate scandals described in detail for comparative analysis.

An Introduction to the Sarbanes-Oxley
Act of 2002 87

Describes the provisions of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act which emerged from the Enron, Arthur Andersen, WorldCom, and Tyco scandals (among others).

A Brief Note on Corporate Ethics Officers 96

Clarifies the relatively new position of "ethics officer" mandated by the November 1991 Federal Sentencing Guidelines. Includes a summary appendix on the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act of 1977.

American Refining Group, Inc. (A) 101

A case series that examines the application of the Caux Round Table Principles and an audit process that accompanies those principles (the SAIP) to a medium-sized Pennsylvania oil refining company. Allows realistic discussion of the role of the CEO in ethical leadership. To be discussed in conjunction with the note in Appendix B, "A Baldrige Process for Ethics?"

H. J. Heinz Company:

The Administration of Policy (A) 111

The ethics of executive behavior in the context of incentive compensation, goal setting, and other corporate mechanisms; instances of questionable activity have begun to emerge.

H. J. Heinz Company:

The Administration of Policy (B) 116

The company now has firmer information; what action should be taken?

B. "Employee Issues"

The Individual and the Corporation 126

When John F. Kennedy is shot, an executive takes a public position on that event which may embarrass his company; his action raises substantial questions about the responsibilities and rights of corporations and executives toward each other.

Lex Service Group, Ltd. (A): Developing the Guidelines 135

Whether, why, and for whom should a corporation develop guidelines for behavior?

Lex Service Group, Ltd. (B): Closing Portsmouth Depot 139

Lex Service Group, Ltd. (C): Work Conditions at Inglesby Shipyard 145

Lex Service Group, Ltd. (D): The Reading Pallets Theft 149

As executives begin to apply the guidelines to actual situations at the company, ethical courses of action become problematic.

Reell Precision Manufacturing, Inc.: A Matter of Direction (A) 151

When a company has been successful for years partly because of its strong Judeo-Christian culture, how should it respond to those who claim that this is discriminatory?

FBS Incorporated: Ethics and Employee Investments 167

How does the director of human resources deal with her awareness that the employees of her firm need education in the area of financial planning, and how does she balance their needs with the financial objectives of the firm.

Waterbee Toy Company (A): Should Monitoring Occur? 172

Note on E-Mail, Internet Use, and Privacy in the Workplace 175

Faced with the issue of monitoring employees' e-mail and Internet usage, how does one manager balance the privacy of employees against the security of the organization while shaping effective and efficient policies?

Webster Health Systems (A) 180

Note on the Americans with Disabilities Act: With Reference to the "Bermuda Triangle" 187

In 1990 the Americans with Disabilities Act was raising legal issues about alcoholism, while corporate America was being suffocated by such issues. How does one large health system face the ethical and legal situation concerning the termination of a suspected alcoholic employee?

PART THREE

CORPORATE VALUES: LOOKING OUTWARD 197

Tennessee Coal and Iron 200

Company-community relationships; should a business firm take action regarding issues of race relations that face a community?

The Poletown Dilemma 208

Should General Motors keep its plant in Detroit or move it to another location? At what cost to shareholders? Should Detroit accommodate General Motors to keep the company from moving? At what cost to the citizens of Poletown?

Dayton Hudson Corporation:
Conscience and Control (A) 221

Dayton Hudson Corporation:
Conscience and Control (B) 235

Dayton Hudson Corporation:
Conscience and Control (C) 242

A hostile takeover attempt of a company with an outstanding record of corporate community involvement and the resulting implications to the meaning of ownership and governance in today's corporation.

Northwest Airlines: Private Sector,
Public Trust (A) 248

Corporations are called upon to demonstrate responsibility toward communities. Do communities have responsibilities toward corporations?

The Bush Foundation: A Case Study in Giving Money Away (A) 261

When a nonprofit foundation takes great pains to give money away with social responsibility, does it also have a duty to invest its principal according to social criteria?

Note on Product Safety 270

A background note for the product safety cases.

Managing Product Safety:
The Ford Pinto 273

Managing Product Safety: The Procter and Gamble Rely Tampon 281

Two classic cases on problems of product safety, government regulation, and customer relations.

The Playskool Travel-Lite Crib (A) 287

The Playskool Travel-Lite Crib (B) 295

The Playskool Travel-Lite Crib (C) 301

These cases discuss the design, development, marketing, sale and finally the recall of the Travel-Lite portable crib after three children's deaths.

Minnesota Bank (A) 304

Note on Financial Privacy 307

In the wake of a lawsuit brought forth by the attorney general to block U.S. Bancorp from providing customer information to marketers of nonfinancial products and services, Minnesota Bank finds itself starting a business venture with ACME Leasing, what are the implications of a bank selling its customers' names and credit reports to a private company for revenue enhancement opportunities? What steps will they take to protect the privacy of their customers?

Northwest Airlines vs. WCCO-TV: Business Ethics and the Media (A) 313

Northwest Airlines vs. WCCO-TV: Business Ethics and the Media (B) 337

From the viewpoint of two key Northwest Airline managers, the decision-making challenges they faced after a lengthy investigative report questioned the safety consciousness of the Northwest's management and employees.

U.S. Citizen Bank (A) 343

The Challenge of Responsible Lending and Debt: An Introduction to Nonstandard Credit 360

A case series that presents some of the ethical questions associated with the marketing of student credit cards from the perspective of a bank product manager.

Environmental Pressures: The Pollution Problem 366

What has often been referred to as the "classic pollution case," wherein a previously authorized mining and processing operation on Lake Superior's shore is now charged with violating a variety of environmental regulations.

Ashland Oil, Inc.: Trouble at Floreffe 384

How candid should a chief executive be when the company appears to have been negligent regarding an oil spill? What if the lawyers have a lot to say about potential litigation?

Exxon Valdez: Corporate Recklessness on Trial 396

In the highest-profile civil damage case in corporate legal history, the jury had to determine what was fair to all the parties—both as to compensation and as to punishment.

PART FOUR
CORPORATE VALUES:
INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS 413

Changmai Corporation 416

The new general manager of a Malaysian paper-producing subsidiary of an international corporation is asked by the local environmental ministry for a bribe, and weighs the consequences.

Safety First? 422

An American manager in Jakarta is troubled over differing standards of workplace safety between America and Indonesia. When do differences deserve criticism?

The Evaluation 425

A Swiss multinational manager faces a dilemma as he tries to apply to a senior Thai employee a corporate performance appraisal system that seemed to pit principle against respect for cultural differences.

Dow Corning Corporation: Business Conduct and Global Values 430

How to develop a comprehensive ethics policy for a global enterprise, even when local ethical norms may differ.

Dow Corning Corporation: The Breast Implant Controversy 448

Ten years after the Dow Corning case on the global business conduct policy, the company is driven into Chapter 11 by a controversy over the safety of its silicone breast implants.

Managing Boundaries: ADC Telecommunications in Mexico (A) 464

How a manager of a U.S. maquiladora plant in Mexico must balance the cultural expectations of his role and the needs of his employees with his company's responsibilities to its shareholders.

Ethics, Power, and the Cree Nations (A) 479

How will the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission provide consumers with safe, adequate, reliable electrical service at a fair and reasonable rate when Northern States Power Company has petitioned it to renew a sourcing agreement that affects the traditional hunting and fishing grounds of five indigenous Cree nations in Canada?

Medtronic in China (A) 494

After investing considerable time, effort, and money to redesign a pacemaker for the China market and to construct a plant to produce them in Shanghai, Medtronic executives are confronted with what seems to be an attempt at extortion by the local power bureau.

Business E-Ethics: Yahoo! on Trial (A) 506

A prolonged confrontation between Yahoo and French activists who demand the removal of Nazi items from the auctions site.

Should Business Influence the Science and Politics of Global Environmental Change?

The Oil Industry and Climate Change (A) 519

Should Business Influence the Science and Politics of Global Environmental Change?

The Oil Industry and Climate Change (B): Climate Change Strategies of Three Multinational Oil Corporations 532

How three multinational oil companies approach the data on global warming and climate change very differently.

Monsanto and Genetically Modified Organisms 547

A study of the evolution of the international regulatory, political, and public opinion environment in which multinational companies must operate.

Soccer Balls Made for Children by Children? Child Labor in Pakistan 559

A study of child labor using the Atlanta Agreement, an initiative designed to eliminate child labor in Pakistan's soccer ball industry.

Mobil in Aceh, Indonesia (A) 571

Mobil Oil Indonesia is accused of environmental and human rights abuses in its joint venture with Pertamina, the state-owned oil company.

APPENDIXES

A. Bridging East and West in Management Ethics: Kyosei and the Moral Point of View 583

A discussion of some basic similarities between Western and Asian ethical ideals and their application to corporations through the Caux Round Table Principles of Business Conduct.

B. A Baldrige Process for Ethics? 595

A description and illustration of a corporate self-assessment tool for senior management and boards of directors aimed at increasing ethical awareness and avoiding potential threats to an organization's reputation.

C. Self-Assessment and Improvement Process: Executive Survey 611

A patented tool developed for auditing a company's culture based on the Caux Round Table Principles of Business Conduct.

ALPHABETICAL LIST OF CASE STUDIES 631