

Contents

List of illustrations	xi
Acknowledgements	xii
Introduction	1
Business strategy	2
The Netherlands as a small country with an open economy	4
Debates in business history	8
National business systems	13
Long-term perspective	15
CHAPTER 1: FAMILY-BASED MANAGEMENT IN AN INTERNATIONAL CONTEXT, 1895–1914	18
Introduction	18
Interlude 1: The Philips family and the incandescent lamp	20
1.1 Small scale and family run	23
Cotton industry	26
Engineering and shipbuilding	29
Chemical industry	31
Food sector	34
Family management	37
1.2 The stimulating influence of the Dutch East Indies	39
A profusion of companies, many of them free-standing	40
The colonial network	41
Managing from a distance	45
The spectacular rise of the petroleum industry	47
Multinationals	49

1.3 Businessmen and the spirit of free enterprise	52
Trade, restrictive trade practices, trusts and cartels	52
Discussion on a national patent law	56
Labour relations	60
Conclusion	67
CHAPTER 2: A SMALL COUNTRY IN AN ERA OF WAR AND PROTECTIONISM, 1914–1945	68
Introduction	68
Interlude 2: The Philips family firm becomes a multinational company	72
2.1 The First World War and its aftermath	75
Close alliance between business and government	78
Vertical and horizontal integration	81
Collaboration between capital and labour	84
A short but fierce crisis	88
2.2 From roaring twenties to gloomy depression	91
Internationalisation of Dutch enterprise	92
Fluctuating business in the Dutch East Indies	100
Management, organisation and rationalisation	105
Huddling together during the depression	111
2.3 The Second World War	113
Adapting to new circumstances	114
A cog in the German war machine	117
Dutch business outside the Netherlands	122
Conclusion	124
CHAPTER 3: FOLLOWING THE AMERICAN LEAD, 1945–1975	126
Introduction	126
Interlude 3: Philips achieves rapid expansion in consumer mass markets	129
3.1 The managed economy: between socialism and capitalism	133
Industrial relations and the centrally directed wage policy	134
Government and the promotion of the manufacturing industry	138
To whom does the company owe its responsibility?	144
The welfare state and consumer capitalism	146

3.2 The spread of the managerial enterprise	148
The productivity drive	149
The family firm under pressure	152
Cartels, mergers and diversification	157
3.3 Internationalisation, losses and gains	165
Loss of the Dutch East Indies: political and economic decolonisation	167
Dutch multinational companies in fragmented markets	173
The Netherlands as host for multinational companies	179
Conclusion	181
CHAPTER 4: COMPETING IN THE GLOBAL ECONOMY, 1975–2000	183
Introduction	183
Interlude 4: Philips under pressure in global markets	188
4.1 The glide into economic recession	191
Downward spiral in an unfriendly business climate	192
Spectacular failures	196
A new appreciation of entrepreneurship and the small firm	200
4.2 Flexibility in post-industrial society	201
Flexible organisation of the enterprise	202
Changing views on the best strategies	205
Mergers and acquisitions	207
Revolt of the capital market	211
Wage moderation and flexibility in labour relations	214
A more modest role for government	219
4.3 International business and national boundaries	222
Global strategies of manufacturing companies	226
The rise of the service multinationals	230
Foreign masters	235
Cross-border mergers and national cultures	239
Conclusion	241
Conclusion	243
Internal organisation of the firms	244
External organisation of firms	246

x Contents

International orientation	248
Management and labour relations	250
Attitudes towards the state	252
Dutch business system	254
Notes	258
Bibliography	291
Index	312

Illustrations

Figures

I.1	Dutch import and export as percentage of GDP, 1815–1995	7
I.2	Dutch inward and outward direct foreign investment, 1948–2002	9
3.1	Dutch inward and outward direct foreign investment, 1948–1975	173
4.1	Dutch merger movement, 1970–2000	208
4.2	Dutch inward and outward direct foreign investment, 1975–2002	223

Tables

I.1	Breakdown of employment by major economic sectors, the Netherlands compared with Britain and Germany	6
I.2	The Netherlands within North-West Europe and the US	6
I.3	Growth of population, GDP and GDP per capita and GDP per hour worked, the Netherlands	17
2.1	Company size in manufacturing in the Netherlands	106
3.1	Ranking of Dutch companies in the list of largest 50 industrial corporations outside the US (ranked by sales)	177
4.1	Dutch (or mixed Dutch) companies in Fortune's list of world's largest corporations	225