

Abridged table of contents

Acknowledgements	xv
About the authors	xvii
Preface	xxi
1 Human resource management's role in the evolving paradigm	1
2 Human resources and the competitive advantage	28
3 Human resources and leadership	46
4 The strategic role of human resource management	76
5 Managing flexible patterns of work for competitive advantage	102
6 Integrating total quality management and human resource management	129
7 Managing intellectual capital within organisations	155
8 International human resource management	183
9 Labour relations in multinational firms	209
10 Human resource management and the electronic era	234
11 Ethical issues and challenges in human resource management	248
12 The future role of human resource management	280
Appendix A: Case studies	297
Appendix B: Answers	303
Subject index	315
Author index	324

Contents

	Acknowledgements	xv
	About the authors	xvii
	Preface	xxi
1	Human resource management's role in the evolving paradigm	1
	Introduction	1
1.1	The origins of HRM	1
1.2	The present role of HRM	3
1.3	The new employee–employer relationship	5
1.4	Innovative approaches to HRM	7
1.4.1	Self-managed work teams	9
1.4.2	Alternative workplace	12
1.4.3	Virtual HRM	15
	Summary	16
	Test your understanding	17
	References	21
	Appendix 1.1	24
	Appendix 1.2	27
2	Human resources and the competitive advantage	28
	Introduction	28
2.1	What is a 'competitive advantage'	29
2.2	Sources of competitive advantage	29
2.3	HR's role in gaining a competitive advantage	32
2.3.1	The resource-based paradigm	33
2.3.2	The best-practices paradigm	34
2.3.3	The process paradigm	38
	Summary	38
	Test your understanding	39
	References	42

3	Human resources and leadership	46
	Introduction	46
3.1	What is leadership?	46
3.2	Why is leadership important?	50
3.3	Individual models of leadership	51
3.3.1	Traits-based approach	51
3.3.2	Behavioural-based approach	51
3.3.3	Situational-based approach	51
3.3.4	Transactional-based approach	53
3.3.5	Transformational-based approach	54
3.3.6	Charismatic-based approach	54
3.3.7	Managerial-based approach	54
3.3.8	Strategic-based approach	55
3.4	Group models of leadership	55
3.4.1	Cross-functional teams	57
3.4.2	Self-managed teams	57
3.4.3	Executive teams	58
3.4.4	New developments	61
3.5	Leadership training/development techniques	62
3.6	The leadership role of HR	66
	Summary	66
	Test your understanding	67
	References	71
4	The strategic role of human resource management	76
	Introduction	76
4.1	The basic principles of SHRM	77
4.2	The relationship between strategic management and SHRM	79
4.2.1	The technical system	81
4.2.2	The political system	81
4.2.3	The cultural system	81
4.3	The design of an HR strategy	82
4.4	Models of SHRM	83
4.4.1	Organisational SHRM content models	85
4.4.2	Functional SHRM content models	85
4.4.3	Organisational SHRM process models	87
4.4.4	Functional SHRM process models	89
4.4.5	General SHRM models	89
4.4.6	Models of 'fit' versus 'flexibility'	89
	Summary	93

	Test your understanding	94
	References	98
5	Managing flexible patterns of work for competitive advantage	102
	Introduction	102
5.1	What is flexibility?	103
5.2	The growth of global flexibility	105
5.2.1	Flexible work patterns in Europe	105
5.2.2	Flexible work patterns in Asia	106
5.2.3	Flexible work patterns in Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa	109
5.3	Flexibility and organisational design	109
5.3.1	Flexible specialisation	110
5.3.2	The flexible firm model	113
5.4	Advantages and disadvantages of flexible patterns of work	115
5.4.1	The employer perspective on flexible patterns of work	115
5.4.2	The employee perspective on flexible patterns of work	117
	Summary	118
	Test your understanding	120
	References	123
6	Integrating total quality management and human resource management	129
	Introduction	129
6.1	What is quality?	129
6.2	The emergence of quality as a managerial issue	130
6.3	The evolution of quality management	132
6.4	TQM and HRM	133
6.4.1	Linking HRM and TQM	135
6.4.2	Trade unions and TQM	138
6.4.3	Linking HRM and TQM in practice	140
6.5	The problems and paradoxes of TQM	141
6.5.1	The role of middle managers	142
	Summary	144
	Test your understanding	145
	References	149

7	Managing intellectual capital within organisations	155
	Introduction	155
7.1	The origins and nature of intellectual capital	156
7.2	Knowledge as the key building block of intellectual capital	156
7.2.1	Categories of knowledge	157
7.2.2	Types of knowledge	158
7.3	The components of intellectual capital	160
7.4	The measurement of intellectual capital	164
7.5	HR's role in obtaining, building and retaining intellectual capital	169
7.5.1	Obtaining intellectual capital	170
7.5.2	Building intellectual capital	170
7.5.3	Retaining intellectual capital	175
	Summary	176
	Test your understanding	176
	References	180
8	International human resource management	183
	Introduction	183
8.1	What's special about 'international'?	183
8.2	Key issues: central or local?	188
8.3	When is an expatriate needed?	189
8.3.1	Managing assignments in each quadrant	192
8.3.2	Managing assignments through time	194
8.4	International HRM: cheaper and/or better?	195
8.4.1	Doing it cheaper: alternatives to expatriation	195
8.4.2	Doing it better: the expatriate cycle	198
8.5	Strategy and attention to detail	200
	Summary	201
	Test your understanding	201
	References	205
9	Labour relations in multinational firms	209
	Introduction	209
9.1	Key issues in international labour relations	211
9.1.1	The degree of inter-subsidiary production integration	212
9.1.2	Nationality of ownership of the subsidiary	212
9.1.3	International HRM approach	213

9.1.4	MNE prior experience in labour relations	214
9.1.5	Subsidiary characteristics	214
9.1.6	Characteristics of the home product market	214
9.1.7	Management attitudes towards unions	214
9.1.8	Industrial disputes	216
9.2	Labour unions and international labour relations	216
9.3	The impact of multinationals upon trade union and employee interests, and the response of labour unions	218
9.3.1	International trade secretariats	219
9.3.2	Lobbying for restrictive national legislation	219
9.3.3	Regulation of multinationals by international organisations	220
9.4	Regional integration: the European Union	221
9.4.1	Disclosure of information and European works councils	222
9.4.2	Social 'dumping'	223
9.5	Regional integration: the North America Free Trade Agreement	224
	Summary	224
	Test your understanding	225
	References	229
10	Human resource management and the electronic era	234
	Introduction	234
10.1	The impact of the electronic era on business	234
10.1.1	What does e-business mean?	234
10.1.2	Where does a company start on the e-business path?	235
10.1.3	Formulating an e-business strategy	236
10.1.4	Implementing the e-business strategy	237
10.2	The impact of the electronic era on HRM	239
10.2.1	Describing e-HR	239
10.2.2	Advantages of e-HR	239
10.2.3	Disadvantages of e-HR	240
10.2.4	HR intranet sites	240
	Summary	242
	Test your understanding	243
	References	246

11	Ethical issues and challenges in human resource management	248
	Introduction	248
11.1	What is 'ethics' in organisations?	248
11.2	Ethical dimensions of a strategic HRM paradigm	249
11.2.1	The problem of dual loyalties	249
11.2.2	HR professional codes of conduct	250
11.2.3	An integrity-orientated approach to a strategic business partnership	252
11.3	Ethical issues and challenges in the workplace	254
11.3.1	HRM policies and procedures	254
11.4	Ethical decision-making frameworks	263
11.4.1	The consequences of actions: teleological theory	263
11.4.2	The importance of duty to others: deontological theory	265
11.4.3	Fairness: the idea of justice	266
11.4.4	Individual entitlements: rights	267
11.4.5	Convergence across normative ethical theories	268
11.5	The emerging role of HR professionals in the operationalisation of corporate ethics programmes	269
	Summary	272
	Test your understanding	272
	References	276
12	The future role of human resource management	280
	Introduction	280
12.1	The new millennium workplace	280
12.1.1	The virtual organisation	281
12.1.2	The just-in-time workforce	282
12.1.3	The ascendancy of knowledge workers	282
12.1.4	Computerised coaching and electronic monitoring	282
12.1.5	The growth of worker diversity	283
12.1.6	The ageing workforce	283
12.1.7	The birth of the dynamic workforce	283
12.2	The redesign of the HRM role	283
12.2.1	Contracting new roles	284

12.2.2	Competencies	286
12.2.3	Redesign of HR process and structure	286
12.3	The skills required of the future
	HR professional	288
12.3.1	Knowledge of business	288
12.3.2	Delivery of HR practices	288
12.3.3	Management of change processes	289
12.4	The structure of the future HR department	289
	Summary	290
	Test your understanding	290
	References	294
	Appendix A: Case studies	297
	Appendix B: Answers	303
	Subject index	315
	Author index	324