

Table of Contents

1.	Michio Hosaka (Nihon University) On Unaccusative Constructions in the History of English	1
2.	Yoko Iyeiri (Kyoto University) The Development of Non-assertive any in The Paston Letters	19
3.	Tadashi Kotake (Keio Graduate School) Aldred's Multiple Glosses: Is the Order Significant?	35
4.	Yoshiyuki Nakao (Hiroshima University) The Interpretation of Troilus and Criseyde 3.587: ' syn I moste on yow triste '	51
5.	Yuji Nakao (Nagoya University, Professor Emeritus) The Demonstrative Pronouns tho , those and thise , these , etc. in the Winchester Malory and Caxton's Malory	73
6.	Hiroyuki Nawata (Shimane University) Grammaticalisation and the Economy of Vocabulary Insertion	85
7.	Michiko Ogura (Chiba University) Element order Varies: Samples from Old English Psalter Glosses	105
8.	Masayuki Ohkado (Chubu University) On Word Order in Constructions with Two Predicates in Old English Interlinear Glosses	127
9.	Young-Bae Park (Kookmin University, Korea) Teaching Medieval English in Korea in the Twenty-first Century	147
10.	John Scabill (Keio University) Prose in Motion: Syntactic Change in the Ancrene Wisse	161
11.	Hironori Suzuki (Fukushima National College of Technology) Effect of Alliteration on Constructions with Complex Predicates in Old English Poetry	179

12. Hideki Watanabe (Osaka University)
Sword, Fire and Gragon: Polysemous Compounds in Beowulf
Reconsidered with Special Reference to nacod nið draca (2273) and þæt wæs modig secg (1812) 193
13. Fumiko Yoshikawa (Hiroshima Shudo University)
Middle English Verbs with both Impersonal Use and Reflexive Use 205