

Contents

	Preface	ix
	Introduction	1
1	A Clarification: The Three Meanings of “Migration Age”	13
2	A Recipe on Trial: “The Germans Overthrow the Roman Empire”	23
3	An Entrenched Myth of Origins: The Germans before Germany	40
4	Jordanes’s Getica and the Disputed Authenticity of Gothic Origins from Scandinavia	56
5	The Great Rhine Crossing, A.D. 400–420, a Case of Barbarian Migration	73
6	The “Techniques of Accommodation” Revisited	119
7	None of Them Were Germans: Northern Barbarians in Late Antiquity	187
8	Conclusion: The Long Simplification of Late Antiquity	230
	Appendices
	1. Alexander Demandt on the Role of the Germans in the End of the Roman Empire	241
	2. Chronicle Evidence for the Burgundian Settlement	253

3. The Meaning of agri cum mancipiis in the Burgundian Kingdom	257
--	-----

List of Abbreviations	263
-----------------------	-----

Notes	267
-------	-----

Bibliography	347
--------------	-----

Index	365
-------	-----