

Contents

Acknowledgements	v
I. Introduction	1
II. Arrow's Formulation of the Problem of Social Choice	9
1. The Project: From Individual to Social Preferences	10
2. Ethical Conditions on Social Welfare Functions	13
3. The Impossibility Theorem	16
III. Foundations of Social Choice Theory	20
1. Utilitarianism	21
2. The Utilitarian Background of Welfare Economics: Pigou	27
3. Robbins's Criticism and Ordinal Welfare Economics	32
4. Combining Ordinal Utilitarianism and the Theory of Voting	37
IV. The Informational Basis of Social Welfare Judgments	40
1. The Informational Interpretation of the Impossibility Result	41
2. Against Welfarism	49
3. Alternative Consequentialist Frameworks	56
4. Social Welfare Judgments and Pluralism	69

V. Collective Decision-Making, Pluralism, and Legitimacy	77
1. Collective Decision-Making and Rationality	78
2. Unanimity, the Pareto Principle, and Given Preferences	82
3. Public Deliberation and the Formation of Preferences	88
VI. Introducing Justice	98
1. An Outline of Rawlsian Justice	100
2. Background Justice	110
3. Primary Goods as the Basis for Interpersonal Comparisons	120
VII. Justice in Social Evaluation	129
1. Preference Formation and the Justice of the Basic Structure	130
2. Justice and Legitimacy in Deliberative Decision-Making	138
3. Public Deliberation and Social Evaluation	146
References	156