

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	ix
ACRONYMS	xi
Introduction. West German Literature and Film Since 1968— Modern, Antimodern, Postmodern?	3
Chapter One. “All Power to the Imagination!” From the 1960s to the 1970s	19
Contrasts and Continuities	21
The West German Student Movement	30
The Death of Literature?	43
Dogmatization and Resignation	58
Chapter Two. The Body, the Self	69
Against the Straitjacket of Theory	71
The Body versus the Head: Peter Schneider’s Lenz	76
The Other Begins to Speak: Karin Struck’s Class Love	96
Chapter Three. Writing and the “Erotic Gaze”	119
The Crisis of Language	121
Postmodern Pessimism? Botho Strauss’s Devotion	126
The Writer in Film: Wrong Move by Peter Handke and Wim     Wenders	148
Chapter Four. The Politics of Memory	175
1977: Return of the Repressed	177
Women’s Discourse and the German Past: Germany, Pale     Mother by Helma Sanders-Brahms	186
Re-Presenting History: The Subjective Factor by Helke     Sander	207
Conclusion. Selves and Others	229
WORKS CONSULTED	239
INDEX	257