School Resources
ERIC A. HANUSHEK	865

Abstract	866
Keywords	866
Introduction	867
1. Overview and motivation	867
2. Measurement of outcomes	868
2.1. Impacts of quality on individual incomes – developed countries	870
2.2. Impacts of quality on individual incomes – developing countries	873
2.3. Impacts of quality on economic growth	875
3. Aggregate United States performance	879
3.1. Changes in students	881
3.2. Exogenous cost increases	882
3.3. Changing prices	883
4. Aggregate international data	884
5. Econometric approach	886
6. United States econometric evidence	888
6.1. Study quality	891
6.2. Overall econometric specification	894
7. International econometric evidence	896
7.1. Developing countries	896
7.2. Developed countries	897
8. Project STAR and experimental data	899
9. Interpreting the resource evidence	902
10. Implications for research	903
References	903

Chapter 15

Drinking from the Fountain of Knowledge: Student Incentive to Study and Learn – Externalities, Information Problems and Peer Pressure

JOHN BISHOP	909
Abstract	910
Keywords	911
1. Student effort influences learning	914
2. A model of student learning	919
2.1. The model of student effort	919
2.2. Model of government effort	924
2.3. Evidence that extrinsic rewards matter	925
3. The effects of better signaling of academic achievement	928
3.1. Does better signaling of achievement result in students learning more?	931
3.2. Does better signaling of achievement change teaching and student attitudes?	933
3.3. Does better signaling of achievement influence school attendance and labor market success?	934
4. Setting higher standards for course grades and promotion to the next grade	935
5. Peer norms about studying and academic engagement	938
References	940

Chapter 16

Schools, Teachers, and Education Outcomes in Developing Countries

PAUL GLEWWE AND MICHAEL KREMER

	945
Abstract	946
Keywords	946
1. Introduction	947
2. Education in developing countries	949
2.1. Trends in the quantity of education: enrollment, years of schooling and literacy	950
2.2. The quality of education: resources and academic achievement	956
2.3. School finance and education systems	959
3. Methodological issues	964
3.1. Behavioral models and causal relationships	964
3.2. Estimation using retrospective data	968
3.3. Natural experiments and randomized trials	971
4. Factors influencing the quantity of education attained	972
4.1. Two measurement issues	973
4.2. Building additional schools versus improving the quality of existing schools	975
4.3. Reducing the cost of education	977
4.4. School-based health programs	980
4.5. Gender and school participation	981
4.6. Summary	983
5. Empirical results on quality: Factors affecting skills obtained in school	984
5.1. Retrospective studies	984
5.2. Natural experiments	990
5.3. Randomized evaluations	993
5.4. Summary	995
6. Education systems, the political economy of education, and reform initiatives	996
6.1. Institutional issues and problems	996
6.2. Teacher incentives	998
6.3. Decentralization and local community participation	1000
6.4. Vouchers and school choice programs	1003
6.5. Summary	1006
7. Conclusions and directions for future research	1006
7.1. Conclusions regarding the determinants of education outcomes in developing countries	1006
7.2. Methodological conclusions	1008
Acknowledgements	1012
References	1012

Chapter 17

Has School Desegregation Improved Academic and Economic Outcomes for Blacks?

STEVEN RIVKIN AND FINIS WELCH

	1019
Abstract	1020

Keywords	1020
1. Landmark court cases	1022
2. School desegregation techniques	1024
3. Trends in school enrollment patterns: 1968–2000	1025
4. Desegregation and residential shifts	1033
5. Racial composition and desegregation program outcome effects	1040
Methodological issues	1041
Summary of results	1043
6. Conclusion	1046
Acknowledgements	1047
References	1047
Chapter 18
Teacher Quality
ERIC A. HANUSHEK AND STEVEN G. RIVKIN	1051
Abstract	1052
Keywords	1052
Introduction	1053
1. Aggregate salary trends	1053
2. Distribution of teachers	1056
3. Teacher characteristics and student achievement	1058
3.1. Basic structure	1058
3.2. Evidence on measurable characteristics	1060
4. Outcome-based measures of quality	1065
5. Markets for teacher quality	1069
6. Policy connections	1071
7. Research agenda	1073
8. Conclusions	1074
Acknowledgement	1074
References	1075
Chapter 19
Teacher Supply
PETER J. DOLTON	1079
Abstract	1080
Keywords	1080
1. Introduction	1081
2. Empirical evidence on teacher supply and salaries	1081
2.1. Measuring teacher supply	1081
2.2. Evidence from the US	1084
2.3. Evidence from the UK	1090
2.4. Evidence from the rest of the world	1098

3. Modeling teacher supply	1102
3.1. A simple model of the aggregate teacher labor market	1103
3.2. Initial occupational choice models	1105
3.3. Nonpecuniary considerations and subsequent occupational choice	1107
3.4. Modeling using cross-section data	1108
3.5. Duration modeling and exit from teaching	1109
3.6. Dynamic models and uncertainty	1111
3.7. The aggregate teacher supply function and time series models	1112
3.8. Government and manpower planning models	1113
3.9. Other models	1115
4. The determinants of teacher recruitment, turnover, retention, mobility and re-entry	1115
4.1. Overview of the market and sources of supply	1135
4.2. Aggregate labor market conditions, government intervention and the market mechanism	1136
4.3. Earnings, relative pay and the opportunity wage	1137
4.4. School differences and conditions of work	1142
4.5. Subject specialism differences	1144
4.6. Career structure considerations	1145
4.7. Female career patterns	1147
4.8. Other aspects of teacher supply	1148
5. Future research	1149
6. Conclusion	1153
Acknowledgements	1154

Chapter 20

Pre-School, Day Care, and After-School Care: Who's Minding the Kids? DAVID BLAU AND JANET CURRIE	1163
Abstract	1164
Keywords	1164
1. Introduction	1165
2. Who is minding the kids?	1165
3. The market for child care	1174
3.1. Demand for child care	1174
3.2. Supply of child care	1182
3.3. The effects of child care quality on children	1188
4. Government intervention in the child care market	1195
4.1. Rationale	1195
4.2. Subsidies	1199
4.3. Regulations	1213
5. Publicly provided child care	1221
5.1. Model early intervention programs	1221
5.2. Head Start	1226

5.3. Early Head Start	1234
5.4. State programs	1235
5.5. Programs for school-aged children	1242
6. Unanswered questions	1264
Acknowledgements	1265

Chapter 22

Income and Peer Quality Sorting in Public and Private Schools

THOMAS J. NECHYBA	1327
Abstract	1328
Keywords	1328
1. Introduction	1329

2. Causes of different forms of sorting in primary and secondary education:
Theory	1330
2.1. Sorting across schools within the traditional public school system – school production, housing markets and residential segregation	1331
2.2. Sorting out of the traditional public school system – private, charter and magnet schools	1336
2.3. Sorting within the traditional public school system – tracking and public school objectives	1342
2.4. Modeling public school objectives and their impact on sorting of students (and teachers)	1343
3. From theoretical to computational models of school markets	1345
3.1. Interpreting computational structural models	1346
3.2. Selected simulation results and general lessons on sorting: school finance policies, tracking and vouchers	1347
3.3. From calibration to structural estimation	1355
4. The impact of sorting on outcomes	1356
4.1. The problem of identifying peer effects	1357
4.2. Empirical approaches to conceptual challenges of identifying peer effects	1358
4.3. Empirical findings	1359
5. Future research and conclusion	1361

Chapter 23

Public Intervention in Post-Secondary Education

THOMAS J. KANE	1369
Abstract	1370
Keywords	1370
1. Introduction	1371
2. The incentive implications of state and federal subsidies	1372
2.1. The nature of state subsidies to higher education	1372
2.2. The nature of federal subsidies	1375
2.3. Implicit taxes in the institutional and federal need analysis	1377
3. Gaps in college-going by family income and race	1381
3.1. Widening gaps in college enrollment by race	1383
3.2. Trends in educational attainment	1385
4. Estimates of the impact of price subsidies on enrollment decisions	1388
4.1. Interaction between tuition and family income	1391
4.2. Response to rising returns to college	1392
4.3. Borrowing constraints	1393
5. Role of supply constraints in rising payoff to schooling	1396
6. Conclusion	1398
