

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT	ix
INTRODUCTION	1
1. The constructions	1
2. A functional-cognitive approach	4
3. Methodology	10
4. Outline	14
CHAPTER I
STATE OF THE ART	16
1. The partitive/holistic approach: did John ever finish the job?	17
2. Textual explanations	23
3. Lexicalist-formalist approaches	27
3.1. Levin and Rappaport: Lexical Conceptual Structures	29
3.2. Pinker: constraints and narrow conflation classes	32
3.3. Tenny: an aspectual approach	36
4. Conclusion	39
CHAPTER II
TEXTUAL DIMENSIONS	41
1. The notion of relative topicality	43
2. Relative topicality as motivation for the alternations	47
2.1. Identifiability of nominal referents	47
2.2. Analysis of corpus data	54
2.3. A structural analysis of information distribution	61
2.4. Analysis of corpus data	65
3. Interpretation and conclusion	69
CHAPTER III
HOLICITY AND PARTIVITY	74
1. The Location	76
1.1. The relation between Location and PrepP	76
1.2. The relation between Location and NG: holicity (?)	78
2. The Locatum	84
2.1. Holicity for the Locatum: quantity	84
2.2. Holicity/partivity and definiteness	88
2.3. A quantificational approach	94
3. Conclusion	103

CHAPTER IV

PROCESS AND PARTICIPANTS

105

- 1. Participants and circumstances 105
 - 1.1. Formal tests 108
 - 1.2. Semantic arguments 113
 - 1.3. The syntagmatic relations: Langacker's dependence model 120
 - 1.4. Conclusion 127
- 2. The roles 128
 - 2.1. The Location 129
 - 2.2. The Locatum 131
 - 2.3. The Image 137
 - 2.4. Material and Product 141
- 3. The Process 144
 - 3.1. Constructionally determined polysemy 145
 - 3.2. A dialectically motivated relation 150
- 4. Conclusion 154

CHAPTER V

A RELATIONAL ANALYSIS

156

- 1. The relational domain: from semiosis to possession, from identification to attribution 157
 - 1.1. The intensive subdomain: semiosis 160
 - 1.1.1. Intensive identification 162
 - 1.1.2. Intensive attribution 164
 - 1.2. Circumstantials and possessives 167
 - 1.2.1. Attribution and identification 167
 - 1.2.2. The semiosis-possession cline 170
- 2. Caused relations 180
 - 2.1. Caused intensives and possessives 181
 - 2.2. A caused relational continuum 184
- 3. Conclusion 189

CHAPTER VI

THE MATERIAL/PRODUCT CONSTRUCTIONS

191

- 1. The semiotic type: instantiation and realization models 192
 - 1.1. Indefinite Products 193
 - 1.2. Definite Products 196
 - 1.3. Alternation and reversibility 203
 - 1.4. Interim conclusion 205

2. The part/whole type	206
2.1. Part/whole semantics: a discussion	206
2.2. Alternation	211
3. Conclusion	216
CHAPTER VII
THE IMAGE IMPRESSION AND LOCATIVE CONSTRUCTIONS	219
1. Locative constructions as caused circumstantial relational configurations	220
2. Variants and markedness	224
2.1 A quantitative approach	224
2.2. Collocations and lexical selection restrictions	233
3. The locative alternation and agnation	237
4. Conclusion	244
SUMMARY AND CONCLUSION	247
REFERENCE LIST	257
INDEX	267