

Contents

Preface	ix
1: Introduction	1
Heimat in Other Languages	2
Difficulties in Defining Heimat	3
Identity, Geography, the Need for Heimat, and Innocence	6
Goals and What Is at Stake	9
Space, Alienation, Provincialism, Nature, Gender, and Self-Healings	15
2: Heimat, Modernity, and Nation	25
Anthony Giddens's Modernity and Heimat	29
Jürgen Habermas's Modernity and Heimat	33
Heimat: A Space Free from Irony	40
Heimat: A Mythicized Sense of Time	42
Heimat, the German Nation-State, and Herder's Cultural Nationalism	46
3: Heimat and Concepts of Identity	60
Heimat and the Self	64
Heimat, Loss, and Heimweh	67
Heimat and Regression	71
4: Heimat and the Feminine	81
Heimat as the Ideal Woman (Imagined by Men)	83
Heimat, Freud, and the Uncanny	92
Women's Voices on Heimat	96

5: Heimat, Nature, Landscape, and Ground	112
Fichte, Schelling, and Heimat:
Reenchanting a Disenchanted World	115
Heimat, Adorno, and the Subject's
Imagined Reunion with Nature	120
The German Affinity for Grounding	122
6: Heimat and Innocence (in Childhood, in Religion, in Language, and in Antiheimat)	130
Heimat and Morality	131
Heimat: Growing Up without Growing Up	137
Language as Heimat	139
Antiheimat as Heimat	142
7: Conclusion	151
Works Cited	161
Index	175