

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword	V
Chapter One. Preliminaries	1
1.0. Introduction	1
1.1. The Historical Framework	2
1.2. The Theoretical Framework	5
1.3. Early New High German Infinitival Complement Constructions: An Overview	12
1.3.1. Predicate complements	12
1.3.2. Noun complements	15
1.3.3. Adverbial complements	15
1.3.4. Shared-NP complements	15
1.3.5. Substantival infinitives	16
1.4. Distribution of Complementizers	17
1.5. The Corpus	19
Chapter Two. Subject Complements	20
2.1. The Structure of Sentences with Infinitival Subject Complements	20
2.2. Subject Complements in the Corpus	27
2.2.0. Complementizer distribution and deletion conditions	27
2.2.1. Verbs and verbal expressions	29
2.2.1.1. One-place constructions	29
2.2.1.2. Two-place constructions	30
2.2.2. Adjectives	32
2.2.2.1. One-place constructions	33
2.2.2.2. Two-place constructions	35
2.2.3. Nouns	36
2.2.3.1. One-place constructions	36
2.2.3.2. Two-place constructions	38
2.3. Putative Subject-to-Subject Raising Verbs: scheinen, dünken, bedünken	39
Chapter Three. The Shared-NP Construction: Surface Structure Subject Equivalent to Deep Structure Direct Object	46
3.0. Introduction	46
3.1. Surface Structure Problems	50

3.2. The Surface Structure sein + zu + infinitive	52
3.3. Adverbs and Adjectives in the Surface Structure: sein + A + zu + infinitive	61
3.3.1. A's which cannot occur as predicate of any subject	62
3.3.2. A's which can occur with concrete subject but not with sentential subject	62
3.3.3. A's which can occur with both noun subject and sentential subject	63
3.3.3.1. Deletion under indefiniteness	63
3.3.3.2. Examples without surface structure subject	67
3.3.3.3. Deletion by EQUI	68
3.3.4. zu + adjective	71
3.4. Attributive Adjectives and Nouns	73
3.5. Verbs	74
3.5.1. Deletion under indefiniteness	74
3.5.2. Deletion by EQUI	75
3.6. Perspective	77
Chapter Four. Object Complements	78
4.0. Preliminaries	78
4.0.1. Object complement constructions	78
4.0.2. Adverbial infinitival clauses	81
4.0.2.1. Final clauses	83
4.0.2.2. Result (consecutive) clauses	85
4.0.2.3. Conditional clauses	85
4.0.2.4. Parenthetical infinitival clauses	86
4.0.3. Shared-object constructions	86
4.0.4. On word order in object complements	88
4.0.5. The derivation of object complements with infinitivals	97
4.1. Two-place Constructions with Bare Infinitive	99
4.1.1. Verbs which nearly always occur with bare infinitive	99
4.1.2. Verbs which almost never occur with bare infinitive	105
4.1.3. Verbs with bare infinitive and zu + infinitive	106
4.2. Two-place Object Complement Constructions with zu + infinitive	113
4.2.1. Shared-object constructions and object complements	113
4.2.2. Examples from the corpus	115
4.2.3. Reflexive verbs	119
4.3. The Accusative and Infinitive Construction	122

4.3.0. Introduction	122
4.3.1 The accusative and infinitive construction in ENHG	124
4.3.2. Sehen, hören, lassen, heissen	128
4.3.3. Machen, finden and haben	139
4.4. Three-place Constructions with Dative NP	141
4.4.1. Shared-object constructions	141
4.4.2. Object complement constructions with zu + infinitive	143
4.4.3. Constructions with the bare infinitive	146
4.4.4. Two-place examples	147
4.5. Three-place Object Complement Constructions with Accusative NP	149
4.5.1. Constructions with zu + infinitive	149
4.5.2. Constructions with the passive	151
4.5.3. Constructions with the bare infinitive	152
4.6. Adjectives	153
4.6.0. Introduction	153
4.6.1. Two-place adjectival constructions	154
4.6.2. Three-place constructions with personal subject	157
4.6.3. Embedded adjectival complement constructions	158
4.6.4. Adverbial clauses	160
4.7. Constructions with Coreferential Pronoun	163
4.8. Object Complements which Undergo the Passive Transformation	164
4.9. The Surface Construction: prepositional phrase + zu + infinitive	164
Chapter Five. Noun Complements	169
5.0. Introduction	169
5.1. The Early New High German Constructions.	170
Chapter Six. Summary	174
Bibliography	185