

Contents

Chapter 1 Memory and language: Introduction Hanna Pishwa	1
Part 1. Linguistic structure and memory
Chapter 2 A constructivist epistemology for the language sciences Ngoni Chipere	37
Chapter 3 'What's a nice NP like you doing in a place like this?' The grammar and use of English inversions Gert Webelhuth, Susanne Wendlandt, Niko Gerbl, and Martin Walkow	75
Chapter 4 Co-occurrence and constructions Paul Deane	103
Chapter 5 On the reduction of complexity: Some thoughts on the interaction between conceptual metaphor, conceptual metonymy, and human memory Rainer Schulze	143
Chapter 6 Making ends meet Uwe Multhaup	163
Part 2. Select linguistic notions and memory
Chapter 7 Evaluation and cognition: Inscribing, evoking and provoking opinion Monika A. Bednarek	187

Chapter 8

Causality and subjectivity: The causal connectives of Modern Greek

Eliza Kitis

223

Chapter 9

Expression of goals in communication: The case of multifunctional 'try'

Hanna Pishwa

269

Chapter 10

What psycholinguistic negation research tells us about the nature of the working memory representations utilized in language comprehension

Barbara Kaup

313

Part 3. Discoursal units and memory

Chapter 11

It utterly boggles the mind: Knowledge, common ground and coherence

Wolfram Bublitz

359

Chapter 12

Remembering another's experience: Epistemological stance and evaluation in narrative retelling

Ilana Mushin

387

Chapter 13

Conversation memory: Intentions, politeness, and the social context

Thomas Holtgraves

409

Chapter 14

Nonliteral language, persuasion, and memory

Roger J. Kreuz and Aaron Ashley

425

Index

445