Contents

 Preface vii
 Acknowledgements xi

1. Approaches to Hospice Death 1
   Perspectives on ‘Dying’ 1
   Social Death in Contemporary Life 5
   A Brief Outline of the Hospice Movement 7
   Death, Denial and the Social Sciences 11

2. The Research Process 15
   Reflexivity and the Origins of the Ethnography 15
   Background Information about Stadtwald Hospice 17
   The Emergence of Field, Topic and Researcher 19
   A Note on Research Ethics, Diaries and Translations 25

3. An Ethnographic Account of Everyday Hospice Care 29
   Hospital or Home? The Spatial and Figurative Setting of Stadtwald Hospice 29
   Good Hospice Care – A Discussion of Daily Nursing Practice 37
   ‘I Have Been Looking For You...’ – Helping Mr Rathje to Get Up 39
   ‘One Cannot Think about the Illness All the Time’ – Breakfast For Mrs Öttinger 45
   Fading Life – Mrs Brunnhofer’s Last Year 49
   Dignity in the Ordinary 55
   The Nurses’ View – Carers’ Interest in Patients’ Lives 56
   Being a Good Girl – Misunderstandings with Mrs Behrens 56
   Uses of Autonomy – The Nurses’ Demands 58
   Success and Failure in Hospice Nursing 60
4. Nursing Stories – Narrative Approaches to Hospice Life 65
   Stories in the Negotiation of Hospice Life 65
   The Meaning of Small Things – Therapeutic Emplotment in Hospice Nursing 76
   Breakfast for Mr Tanner 79
   Mrs Hunn’s Tour of the Hospice 84
   Grand Schemes – A Nurses’ Dispute 88
   Challenges for Mr Kasperek 90
   No Stories to Tell – Failure Revisited 93

5. Death at Stadtwald Hospice 97
   Arrangements Surrounding Death 97
   Farewells and Farewell Rituals 102
   Narrative Patterns Surrounding Death 108

6. Conclusion 113
   Ethnographic Summary 113
   Theoretical Suggestions 119
   The Construction of Life 119
   The Conceptualisation of Death 120

Bibliography 125

Index 133