

Introduction	11
1 Theory	15
1.1 The Scottish Literary Tradition and the Construction of Emotions.....	15
1.2 Emotion Theory	24
1.2.1 What Is an Emotion?.....	24
1.2.2 Martha Nussbaum’s Emotion Theory.....	28
1.2.3 Emotions and Gender.....	40
1.3 Anthropology, Ethical Criticism and Poststructuralism	44
1.4 Selection of Primary Texts.....	53
2 Alasdair Gray’s Lanark : The Ironic Diagnosis of a (Typically) Scottish Psychosis – and a First Step Towards Cultural Regeneration	57
2.1 Predestination.....	58
2.2 Shame and Love.....	62
2.3 Doppelgängers and the Dialectic of Fear.....	69
2.4 A Postmodern Apocalypse.....	76
3 Janice Galloway’s The Trick Is To Keep Breathing : An Almost Fatal Combination of Grief and ‘Mauvaise Fois’	83
3.1 Joy’s Stages of Grieving	84
3.2 Fear.....	98
3.3 Healing	100
3.4 Combatting Scottish ‘Mauvaise Fois’	105
4 A.L. Kennedy’s So I Am Glad : A Healing Influence of the French Enlightenment on Scottish Emotional Deficiencies	109
4.1 Lack of Emotions – Disorientation	110
4.2 Reconstruction of Emotions by Means of Mirroring.....	118
4.3 Guilt, Shame and Trauma	121
4.4 Emotions and Narrative: Guiding the Implied Reader’s Emotions.....	125
4.4.1 Jennifer’s Retrospective.....	126
4.4.2 Savinien in Postmodern Scotland – Kennedy’s Use of the Fantastic.....	127
5 Bernard MacLaverly’s Grace Notes : A Struggle for Female Creative Autonomy	135
5.1 Depression.....	135
5.2 Composition and Religious Symbolism.....	141
5.3 Healing process	147

5.4	Reader Activation through Retrospective and the Dynamics of Composition	150
6	Jackie Kay's Trumpet : Identity as Improvisation	153
6.1	Masculinity and Fear: A Post-Patriarchal Variation on the Doppelgänger Motif	153
6.2	Imagination as a Remedy for the Fear of Otherness	156
6.3	Colman: Masculinity, Shame and Disgust	163
6.4	All that Jazz - Guiding the Implied Reader's Imagination	169
7	Ruaridh Nicoll's White Male Heart : Ambiguous Perspectives on Emotions and Countryside	175
7.1	The Representation of the Highlands: Between Sublimity and Irony	176
7.1.1	Identification with and Alienation from the Countryside	176
7.1.2	The Fragmentation of the Highland Community	181
7.2	Ritualized Fear	183
7.3	Love and the Polarity between Masculinity and Femininity	185
7.3.1	Affection Deficits and Creativity	185
7.3.2	Conflicting Constructions of Masculinity and Femininity	188
7.4	Ambiguous Emotional and Moral Perspectives	191
8	Conclusion	197
9	Bibliography	201