Contents

List of illustrations                      page  x
List of maps                              xiii
List of tables                           xiv
Acknowledgments                          xv

Introduction                             1

1 The decline of empire, the dream of a republic:
   1890s–1911                                14

2 The early Republic – chaos and creativity: 1912–28  45

3 The Nanjing decade – a new beginning? 1928–37  81

4 The Resistance War – warfare and chaos: 1937–45  112

5 The Civil War – the most vicious conflict: 1946–9  151

6 More than survival – the Republic on Taiwan: 1949 to the present                                178

   Conclusion: the end of the Republic?       211

Index of names                            217
Index of places                           220
Index of subjects                         222
Illustrations

1.1 The Empress Dowager, 1903
Source: J. Bland and E. Backhouse, China under the Empress Dowager (Boston: Hill, 1914), frontispiece. By permission of the syndics of Cambridge University Library.

1.2 The infant emperor, 1909
Source: J. Bland and E. Backhouse, China under the Empress Dowager (Boston: Hill, 1914), p. 4. By permission of the syndics of Cambridge University Library.

1.3 Dr. Sun Yat-sen, circa 1910
Photo by Central Press/ Getty Images.

2.1 Stamps of the new Republic, 1912

2.2 Chinese labor battalions

2.3 a. Sun Yat-sen and Song Qingling, 1916
Source: Zhang Lei, Sun Zhongshan yu Song Qingling (Guangzhou: Guangdong renmin chubanshe, 1997), p. 137.

b. Sun Yat-sen and Song Qingling, 1916
Source: Emily Hahn, The Soong Sisters (New York: Doubleday, 1943), p. 120. By permission of the syndics of Cambridge University Library.

3.1 New flag of the Chinese Republic
Source: Zhonghua minguo kangri zhanzheng tumu (Taipei: Jindai Zhongguo chubanshe, 1995), frontispiece.

3.2 Sun Yat-sen mausoleum, Nanjing
3.3 Qipao old and new

4.1 a. Refugees, 1938 [Robert Capa]

b. Refugee mother, wartime China

4.2 Chiang Kai-shek, 1940

4.3 Mao Zedong, 1940

4.4 Chiang Kai-shek in full uniform

4.5 a. Japanese surrender, September 1945 [photograph]

b. Japanese surrender, September 1945 [oil painting by Chen Jian]

5.1 Overprinted stamp, 1948, showing inflation

5.2 a. Queue to withdraw money, Shanghai

b. Same queue, five minutes later

5.3 a. Growth in Communist power, 1947–9
Source: Zhongguo renmin jiefang zhanzheng sannian zhanji (Beijing, 1949), no pagination.

b. GMD and CCP armies compared, 1947–9
Source: Zhongguo renmin jiefang zhanzheng sannian zhanji (Beijing, 1949), no pagination.
5.4 PLA troops enter Shanghai, 1949
Source: Sam Tata, Shanghai, the End of an Era (Toronto: Deneau, 1990), frontispiece.
175

6.1 The presidential palace, Taipei
185

6.2 Taroko Gorge and new road
192

6.3 Images of Chiang Ching-kuo, 1989
196

6.4 Memorial figure of Chiang Kai-shek
203
Maps

1 China
2 Japanese-occupied areas of China, 1940
3 Taiwan

page 2
122
180
1.1 The scramble for the concessions: territories/rights ceded to foreign countries, 1895–9
2.1 Regional migration patterns in the Republic
2.2 Language differences, classical and modern
2.3 Chinese cigarette consumption
3.1 Japanese encroachment on China
3.2 Internal military actions of the GMD, Nanjing decade
3.3 China’s foreign trade, 1910–36
4.1 Japanese bombing of Chinese targets, 1937–45
4.2 A measure of inflation
5.1 Repatriated Japanese and their allies, 1945–6
6.1 US aid to Taiwan, 1951–66