

CONTENTS

|   |     |
|---|-----|
| FOREWORD .....  | 9   |
| PART ONE: PROBLEMS OF THE HÖLDERLIN MYTH ..                             | 15  |
| PART TWO: HÖLDERLIN AND MARXISM IN EXILE ...                            | 33  |
| Chapter One: Hölderlin and Weimar Culture .....                         | 33  |
| Chapter Two: The Search for Tradition .....                             | 42  |
| Chapter Three: Ideological Convergence .....                            | 51  |
| a) Thomas Mann: Hölderlin and Marx .....                                | 51  |
| b) Heinrich Mann: Hölderlin and Stalin .....                            | 55  |
| c) Georg Lukács: The Tragedy of the Jacobin .....                       | 59  |
| d) Johannes R. Becher: The Poet and AnotherKind of Hope .....       | 66  |
| Chapter Four: Historical Critique .....                                 | 79  |
| a) Ernst Bloch: The Radicalism of Hope .....                            | 79  |
| b) Hanns Eisler: Transformations in Art .....                           | 84  |
| c) Bertolt Brecht: Hölderlin without Ideology .....                     | 89  |
| PART THREE: THE GERMAN DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC                              | 99  |
| Chapter One: The Classical Poet (1945-1970) .....                       | 103 |
| a) Poetry .....   | 103 |
| b) Literary Criticism .....   | 108 |
| Chapter Two: The Critical Poet (1970-1976) .....                        | 113 |
| a) Jürgen Kuczynski: The Tragedy of theRevolutionary Idealist ..... | 115 |
| b) Alienation, Madness, and the Crisisof Revolution .....           | 120 |
| c) Stephan Hermlin: The Poet of Alienation .....                        | 132 |
| d) Wolf Biermann: The Poet as Anarchist .....                           | 138 |
| e) Gerhard Wolf: Between Tragedy and Utopia ...                         | 142 |
| f) Volker Braun: The Poet as Producer .....                             | 153 |
| g) Heiner Müller: The Poet and History Entwined .                       | 161 |

PART FOUR: THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF GERMANY 175

|   |     |
|---|-----|
| Chapter One: Hölderlin and the German Myth(1945 – 1963) . . . . . | 175 |
| a) The Traditionalists: „Trunken von Gedichten”                       | 175 |
| b) The Avant-Garde: Ideology andDisenchantment . . . . .          | 178 |

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| Chapter Two: Hölderlin and the Poetryof Protest (1963 – 1976) . . . . .    | 185 |
| a) Theodor W. Adorno: Hölderlin and Beckett . . . . .                          | 187 |
| b) The Culture Industry, the Poet,and the Crisis of Modern Art . . . . .   | 192 |
| c) Robert Minder and Pierre Bertaux:Hölderlin and the Revolution . . . . . | 200 |
| d) Peter Weiss: Hölderlin, the Tower, and Marx . . . . .                       | 206 |
| e) Martin Walser: Mediating Utopia . . . . .                                   | 214 |
| f) Uwe Timm and Karin Struck:Aspects of a New Subjectivity . . . . .       | 221 |
| g) The Frankfurt Edition:Laying a New Foundation . . . . .                 | 233 |

|                 |     |
|-----------------|-----|
| NOTES . . . . . | 241 |
|-----------------|-----|

|                                 |     |
|---------------------------------|-----|
| SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY . . . . . | 277 |
|---------------------------------|-----|