

Contents

Preface	ix
Acknowledgments	xi

Part 1 Studies in Buddenbrooks

1 Hagenströms: The Rival Family	3
2 Separations and Combinations: Language and Society	29
3 "Ein Diener wäre so angenehm . . .": House Servants and Their Masters	51
4 Dominus Providebit : Religion in the Life of a Merchant Dynasty	81
5 Mors et Morbus : Death and Disease in the Family ..	113
6 "Mit dem Typhus ist es folgendermaßen bestellt . . .": The Source of the Typhoid Fever Chapter	139
7 A la française in Lübeck: Elements of French and of French Civilization	155
8 "Ein Verslein nach dem Französischen . . .": A Spicy Epigram	173

Part 2 Studies in Shorter Narratives

9 Savonarola in Munich: An Interpretation of Gladius Dei	189
10 A Case of Slightly Mistaken Identity: Gustav Mahler and Gustav Aschenbach in Visconti's Film Death in Venice	209
11 To Die in Munich: An Analysis of Der Wille zum Glück	225

- 12 The “False” Saraceni: A Footnote to Der Wille zum Glück 243
- 13 Between Two Worlds: A Reading of Ein Glück 255

Part 3 Appendix

- 1 Four Unpublished Letters by Thomas Mann to the Author 279
- 2 A List by Thomas Mann of His Source Readings for the Josephsgeschichten 283
- Bibliography 285