

Contents

Acknowledgements	v
List of figures	x

Chapter 1

Introductory remarks	1
1.1 Subject matter and central claims	1
1.2 Experientialism and the study of metaphor	4
1.3 The dawning of a new age?	7
1.4 Organization of the individual chapters	9

Chapter 2

Metaphor and metonymy in cognitive linguistics	13
2.1 Introduction	13
2.2 Criteria for distinguishing metaphor and metonymy	15
2.2.1 Structural mappings as the criterion of metaphoricality	15
2.2.2 Metonymy as a “stands-for relationship”	17
2.2.3 Similarity	19
2.2.4 Contiguity	22
2.2.4.1 Metonymy as contiguity in discourse	22
2.2.4.2 Contiguity as a relation within domains	26
2.2.4.3 Contiguity as a frame-based relation	31
2.3 General problems with cognitivist analyses	36
2.4 An alternative approach	41
2.5 Summary	51

Chapter 3

ARGUMENT IS WAR and Cognitive Linguistics	53
3.1 Introduction	53
3.2 ARGUMENT IS WAR in Lakoff/Johnson’s works	54
3.2.1 Case study 1	59
3.2.2 Case study 2	62
3.2.3 Relationship to earlier theories	68
3.3 Summary	71

Chapter 4

Early cognitivists and the myth of objectivism	73
4.1 Introduction	73
4.2 Pre-echoes of Lakoff/Johnson's theory of metaphor	74
4.3 Objectivism, objectivity, and myths	77
4.4 Lakoff/Johnson's theory of truth	81
4.4.1 General considerations	81
4.4.2 The experientialist account of truth: A close reading	84
4.5 "The myth of objectivism": A close reading	86
4.5.1 Lakoff/Johnson's challenge to objectivism	86
4.5.2 "Meaning is objective" (Lakoff/Johnson 1980: 198)	90
4.5.3 "Meaning is disembodied" (Lakoff/Johnson 1980: 199)	97
4.6 Lakoff/Johnson (1999) on the Fregean tradition	99
4.7 Experientialist philosophy by other cognitivists	110
4.8 Summary	121

Chapter 5

Cognitive semantics: The theoretical framework	123
5.1 Introduction	123
5.2 Family resemblances and mental images	126
5.3 Mental images and experientialist semantics	128
5.4 Basic-level categories and "direct understanding"	133
5.5 The foundation of cognitive semantics	136
5.6 Summary	139

Chapter 6

Lakoff/Johnson's theory of metaphor	143
6.1 Introduction	143
6.2 Lakoff/Johnson on metaphorical concepts	145
6.3 Lakoff/Johnson on metaphorical "structuring"	148
6.4 Metaphorical definitions	151
6.5 Understanding metaphorical concepts	152
6.6 Lakoff/Johnson on the experiential basis of metaphors	155
6.6.1 General considerations	155
6.6.2 Ontological metaphors as experiential basis	157
6.6.3 The experiential basis of ontological metaphors	160
6.7 A preliminary glance at Lakoff/Johnson (1999)	161
6.8 Summary	168

Chapter 7

Metaphorical expressions – metaphorical concepts	173
7.1 Introduction	173
7.2 The level of generality of source domains	177
7.3 Alternative groupings of metaphorical expressions	179
7.4 Case studies: Further examples and implications	181
7.4.1 On target	181
7.4.2 Defend	182
7.4.3 Demolish	185
7.4.4 Shoot	186
7.5 Ordinary vs. metaphorical concepts	189
7.6 Family resemblances and metaphorical concepts	191
7.7 Summary	192

Chapter 8

The conceptual metaphor view: Recent developments and criticism	197
8.1 Introduction	197
8.2 Psychological criticism of Lakoff/Johnson's theory	197
8.3 On primary metaphors	208
8.3.1 General observations	208
8.3.2 Primary metaphors, complex metaphors, and figurative expressions	216
8.4 Family resemblances, primary metaphors, and complex metaphors	224
8.5 Summary	237

Chapter 9

Conclusion	239
-------------------	-----

Appendix: ARGUMENT IS WAR in Lakoff (1987)	249
Notes	255
Bibliography	263
Index	283