

Contents

List of Illustrations	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction	i
1. Unruly Youth and the Early Modern Polity	9
2. Assimilating the Lower Classes	30
3. Civilizing “Degenerate Students”	66
4. Popularizing Protection	97
5. Preparing Modern Workers, Policing Modern Play	130
6. Juvenile Delinquency and the National Defense State	166
Epilogue: The Century of Juvenile Protection	192
Notes	199
Selected Bibliography	267
Index	293

Illustrations

1.	“Evening in the Samegahashi slum,” 1903	40
2.	Ruffian in the sōshi style, 1917	73
3.	Rake attired in stylish kimono and student cap, 1917	78
4.	Typical girls’-high-school students, ca. 1907	80
5.	Four middle-school students pose for the camera, 1911	84
6.	Occupational breakdown of youths receiving protective measures from the Tokyo Juvenile Court, 1934	107
7.	Young shop clerks dressed for their day off, 1937	142
8.	Modern girls posing in front of a new-model automobile, ca. 1930	150
9.	Café Ultra, 1937	158
10.	Young “industrial warriors” at work, 1942	169