

Contents

Introduction	James Pipkin	7
I. The Romantic Culture
Cultural Transcendence: The Task of the Romantics	Morse Peckham	35
II. Romanticism: Revolution or Evolution?
The German Romantic Revolution	Ernst Behler	61
Romanticism: Revolution and Evolution	Lilian R. Furst	79
III. Concepts of Romanticism
Concepts of Romanticism Inside and Outside of German-Speaking Countries	Wilfried Malsch	91
Romantic Form Consciousness: The Desire of Discourse and the Discourse of Desire	Thomas A. Vogler	111
IV. The Romantic Self
Boundaries and the Self in Romanticism	Philip Gilbertson	143
Romantic Subjectivity: Disease or Fortunate Fall?	Eugene L. Stelzig	153
V. Romantic Irony
Byron, Schlegel, and the Ironist's Lucid Contours	Frederick Garber	171

The Power of Disenchantment: Fichtean Irony and the Creative Imagination in Shelley's "Mont Blanc"
Mark Kipperman	183
Romantic Irony and Anti-Theater
Gerald Gillespie	199

VI. Romanticism: "The Spirit of the Age"

Patterns of Parataxis in Anglo-German Cultural Currents
Thomas McFarland	217
Frictional Fiction: Walter Scott in the Light of von Clausewitz's On War
Karl Kroeber	251
Coleridge, Schlegel, and Animal Magnetism
Frederick Burwick	275
Political Reality and Poetic Mission: Hölderlin's and Shelley's Heterocosm
Günter Klages	301
The Englishness of De Quincey's Ideas
John Beer	323
The Romanticizing of Goethe: A Study in the Acquisition of a Label
Robert C. Holub	349

VII. Images of Romanticism

Mines of the Soul: An Institutional Approach to Romanticism
Theodore Ziolkowski	365
On the Threshold of German Romanticism
John Fetzer	391
English Romanticism: The Myth and Politics of the New Woman
Michael G. Cooke	409
Notes on Contributors	430