

Contents

Foreword and Acknowledgements	vii
1 Beating the Bounds	1
PART ONE STENDHAL, BALZAC AND DETERMINISM
The social and intellectual context	7
2 The Shaping Forces of Society: Stendhal's Europe	9
3 Determinist Thought: Stendhal and the Eighteenth-century Inheritance	17
4 Man and Beast: the Balzacian Jungle	31
5 Une Société Embourgeoisée? Balzac's France	42
PART TWO FACING REALITY: DETERMINISM AND THE REALIST RESPONSE Büchner, Flaubert, Mrs Gaskell, George Eliot, Turgenev, Tolstoy	53
6 Pessimism	55
7 More Pessimism: Flaubert	66
8 The Industrial Revolution	74
9 A Modus Vivendi? George Eliot	89
10 Russia and the Realist Response: Turgenev	98
11 Experience versus the Intellect: Tolstoy	111
PART THREE LATER RESPONSES Zola, Ibsen, Fontane, Chekhov	121
12 La Bête Humaine	123
13 The Ubiquitous Doctor	134
14 The Dismal Science: Economic Man	139
15 Society versus the Individual	152
16 Hope and Despair	163
Appendix A The Determinist Case	175
Appendix B Tristram Shandy , Determinism and Prediction	178
Appendix C Eliot's Moral Dialectic	179
Appendix D Zola, Heredity and Environment: Gervaise and her sons	182
Appendix E Zola and the Manual Classes	184
Appendix F Ibsen, the Individual and Environment: Ghosts and A Doll's House	186
Some books	188
Index	195