

Acknowledgments	ix
Foreword Wlad Godzich	xi
Chapter One	Story and Situation 3
Chapter Two	Self-Situation and Readability 18
Chapter Three	Narratorial Authority and “The Purloined Letter” 50
Chapter Four	Seduction Denied: “Sarrasine” and the Impact of Art 73
Chapter Five	Seduction Renounced: “Sylvie” as Narrative Act 97
Chapter Six	An Invitation to Love: Simplicity of Heart and Textual Duplicity in “Un Cœur Simple” 123
Chapter Seven	Not for the Vulgar? The Question of Readership in “The Figure in the Carpet” 151
Chapter Eight	Gabriel Conroy Sings for His Supper, or Love Refused (“The Dead”) 181
Chapter Nine	Authority and Seduction: The Power of Fiction 205
Appendix A	Saki, “The Open Window” 227
Appendix B	Marcel Schwob, “Les Sans-Gueule” 231
Bibliography	239
Index	249