Contents

Acknowledgements ix

Introduction 1

PART ONE

1 A basis for analysis: schema theory, its general principles, history and terminology 9

Introduction 9
Schema theory: general principles 11
Examples demonstrating schemata in discourse processing 11
Evidence for schemata 12
World schemata and text schemata 14
The origins of schema theory 15
Bartlett's Remembering 16
The eclipse of schema theory 18
The revival of schema theory 18
The terminology of schema theory 19
Notes 20

2 A first bearing: discourse analysis and its limitations 23

Introduction 23
'Text', 'context', and 'discourse' 23
Acceptability above the sentence 25
Cohesion 29
The omission fallacy 34
Meaning as encoding/decoding versus meaning as construction 36
Pragmatic approaches and their capacity to characterize 'literariness' 36
Macro-functions 37
Discourse structure 45
Discourse as process (and literature as conversation) 46
Discourse as dialogue 48
The 'post-scientific' approach 51
Conclusion 53
Notes 54

3 A second bearing: AI text theory and its limitations 59

Introduction 59
The computational and brain paradigms of language 61
The constructivist principle 65
One system of conceptual construction: conceptual dependency theory (CD) 68
Problems for conceptual constructions 74
A complex AI schema theory 79
Conclusion 90
Notes 91

4 Testing the AI approach. Two analyses: a 'literary' and a 'non-literary' text 95

Introduction 95
Text One: the opening of Crime and Punishment (translation) 99
Text Two: 'Every Cloud has a Silver Lining' (advertisement) 109
Conclusions from analyses 118
Notes 122

5 A third bearing: literary theories from formalism to stylistics 125

Introduction 125
The rise of 'modern literary theory' 126
Theories of pattern and deviation 129
The formalist theory of defamiliarization 130
Patterns in discourse: structures and structuralism 140
Roman Jakobson's poetics 152
Conclusion 156
Notes 156

6 Incorporating the reader: two analyses combining stylistics and schema theory 161

Introduction 161
Text Three: 'Elizabeth Taylor's Passion' (advertisement) 161
Text Four: 'First World War Poets' (poem) 167
Incorporating the reader 173
Notes 177

PART TWO

7 A theory of discourse deviation: schema refreshment and cognitive change 181

Introduction: the argument so far 181
The need for schema change 182

Prelude to the theory: earlier accounts of schema change 183
A theory of literary discourse: schema refreshment and cognitive change 189
A theory of literary discourse: discourse deviation 197
Defamiliarization revisited 206
Notes 209

8 Application of the theory: discourse deviation in three literary texts 213

Introduction 213
Text Five: 'The Tyger' 214
Text Six: The Turn of the Screw 224
Text Seven: 'The Windhover' 233
Conclusion 247
Notes 249

9 What the theory means for literature teaching 251

Appendix A: Grammatical notation: symbols and abbreviations 257

Appendix B: Conceptual dependency (CD) and semantics 259

Bibliography 261

Index 277