
CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	ix
Acronyms and Initials	xi
Introduction	xiii
Part 1 Facts, Theory and History	1
1 The Activities of Multinational Enterprises: Some Introductory Remarks	3
1.1 The nature of a multinational enterprise	3
1.2 Measuring the extent and pattern of multinational activity in the global economy	6
2 The Extent and Pattern of Foreign Activities by MNEs	14
2.1 Introduction	14
2.2 A general overview	14
2.3 The leading outward investors	15
2.4 The leading inward investors	19
2.5 The balance between inward and outward direct investment	24
2.6 The sectoral composition of outward and inward investment	25
2.7 The economic significance of different types of industrial activity by MNEs	29
2.8 The geography of MNE activity	41
2.9 The structure of the world's leading MNEs	44
2.10 State-owned multinational enterprises	49
3 The Motives for Foreign Production	54
3.1 Introduction	54
3.2 Why do firms wish to engage in foreign production?	54

3.3	The main types of foreign production	56
3.4	The political economy of outward FDI	63
3.5	Conclusions	63
4	The Determinants of MNE Activity	66
4.1	Introduction	66
4.2	Theories of the MNE and MNE activity: 1960–76	68
4.3	General explanations of MNE activity	75
4.4	Future challenges for the theory of MNEs and MNE activity	90
5	The Emergence and Maturing of International Production: An Historical Excursion	96
5.1	Introduction	96
5.2	Colonizing and merchant capitalism	96
5.3	The early 19th century: the forerunners of the modern MNE	99
5.4	From 1870 onwards: the modern MNE emerges	103
5.5	The maturing of foreign production: 1918–39	119
5.6	The early post-war period: 1945–60	125
5.7	Towards the globalization of production: 1960–90	128
5.8	Conclusions	132
6	Testing the Theory of the Determinants of MNE Activity	137
6.1	Introduction	137
6.2	Field surveys and related studies	139
6.3	Statistical studies	148

6.4	A discussion of some particular variables affecting FDI	175
6.5	Conclusions	179

Part 2 Inside the Multinational Enterprise 183

7 Entry and Expansion Strategies of MNEs 185

7.1	Introduction	185
7.2	The concept of business strategy	186
7.3	The value-added chain	187
7.4	Analysis of the internationalization process	193
7.5	Entry and expansion strategies: towards a more pluralistic and integrated approach	205
7.6	Conclusions	208

8 The Organization of MNE Activity: Intra-firm Relationships 210

8.1	Introduction	210
8.2	The organizational function: some general observations	211
8.3	Organizational structures of MNEs	215
8.4	The locus of decision taking	222
8.5	Conclusions	232

9 The Organization of MNE Activity: Inter-firm Relationships 234

9.1	Introduction	234
9.2	The spectrum of organizational modes: cooperation and competition	234
9.3	Collaborative agreements: some theoretical considerations	235
9.4	Joint equity ventures	237
9.5	Non-equity cross-border co-operative ventures	246
9.6	A note on cross-border cartels	256
9.7	Conclusions	257

Part 3 The Impact of MNE Activity 261

10 Assessing the Consequences of MNE Activity: A Conceptual Framework 263

10.1	Introduction	263
10.2	A framework for analysis	264

10.3	The OLI paradigm revisited	267
10.4	Some further methodological points	281
10.5	FDI and economic development: some alternative approaches	283
10.6	Conclusions	284
Appendix: The effects of MNEs on national economic prosperity: a resumé		284

11	MNEs, Technology and Innovatory Capacity: A Host Country Perspective	287
11.1	Introduction	287
11.2	The taxonomy of technology	288
11.3	The issues to be addressed	290
11.4	The production of technology	290
11.5	Appropriability of technology	292
11.6	The location of technological capacity	299
11.7	The organization of technology transfer	311
11.8	MNEs, technological accumulation and competitive advantages	315
11.9	The role of government action	317
11.10	Conclusions	327

12	MNEs, Technology and Innovatory Capacity: A Home Country Perspective	331
12.1	Introduction	331
12.2	Technological exports and the concerns of home countries	334
12.3	The conditions of technology transfer	335
12.4	Some effects of technology transfer	338
12.5	Empirical evidence	344
12.6	A policy footnote	344

13	MNEs, Employment and Human Resource Management	349
13.1	Introduction	349
13.2	Theoretical underpinnings	350
13.3	Employment in MNEs	353
13.4	Measuring the employment effects of MNE activity	361
13.5	Employment stability	368
13.6	The training practices of MNEs	372

13.7	Terms and conditions of employment	375
13.8	Human resource development: some policy conclusions	379
	Appendix: Summary of conclusions on employee compensation: differences between foreign affiliates and indigenous firms	381
14	MNEs, the Balance of Payments and the Structure of Trade	385
14.1	Introduction	385
14.2	MNEs as cross-border traders	386
14.3	A methodological note	387
14.4	Measuring the transactions of multinationals	389
14.5	Assessing the opportunity cost of external transactions by MNEs or their affiliates	391
14.6	Predicting the likely external transactions of MNEs and the alternative position	400
14.7	MNEs and the structure of trade	401
14.8	MNEs and intra-firm trade	408
14.9	A policy footnote	411
14.10	Conclusions: the evolution of trade and FDI linkages	412
15	MNEs, Market Structure, Performance and Business Practices	415
15.1	Introduction	415
15.2	A conceptual framework	415
15.3	MNEs and allocative efficiency	417
15.4	Technical efficiency	423
15.5	Scale and scope efficiency	427
15.6	MNEs and structural adjustment	428
15.7	MNEs and market structure	428
15.8	Business practices of MNEs	437
15.9	Some policy implications	439
15.10	Conclusions	441
16	MNEs, Linkages and Spill-over Effects	445
16.1	Introduction	445
16.2	Upstream linkages: linkages with suppliers	446
16.3	Downstream linkages: linkages with customers	459

16.4	The networking of vertical linkages	462
16.5	The effects of MNE activity on competitors	462
16.6	Some more general spill-over effects	469
16.7	Summary and conclusions	471
17	MNEs, the International Division of Labour and Economic Integration	474
17.1	Introduction	474
17.2	The international division of labour	475
17.3	Economic integration	479
17.4	The interaction between MNE activity and some specific kinds of regional integration	489
17.5	Conclusions: regional or global integration?	501
18	Distribution of the Value Added Created by MNEs	505
18.1	Introduction	505
18.2	The impact of government policy on the value added by MNEs	507
18.3	Transfer pricing	512
18.4	Policies of governments towards TPM	521
18.5	Conclusions	524
	Appendix: Extracts from OECD guidelines to MNEs draft United Nations code of conduct on transnational corporations and on intra-corporate pricing practices	525
19	MNEs and Nation States: Some Political, Cultural, Strategic and Environmental Issues	528
19.1	Introduction	528
19.2	Sovereignty	529
19.3	MNEs and culture	534
19.4	Strategic interests	536
19.5	Environment-related issues	538
19.6	Conclusions	541

Part 4	Implications for Policy	545
20	Governments and Multinational Activity: The Unilateral Response	547
20.1	Introduction	547
20.2	Some theoretical issues	548
20.3	Interaction between host governments and MNEs	554
20.4	Actions of home governments towards outward direct investment	568
20.5	Conclusions	570
	Appendix: Changes in policies towards inbound direct investment by OECD countries in the late 1980s	571
21	Governments and MNE Activity: The Supra-national or Multi-lateral Response	574
21.1	Introduction	574
21.2	Multinational actions to assist the bargaining power of host countries	574
21.3	Collective investment supporting or market facilitating schemes	578
21.4	The case of extra-territoriality: how might home/host differences be reconciled?	579

21.5	Setting the conditions for international investment: the role of international agencies	583
21.6	Conclusions: towards a new multi-lateral governance	586
	Appendix: United Nations Economic and Social Council: Proposed Text of the Draft Code of Conduct on Transnational Corporations	588

Part 5 Looking Forward 597

22 The Future of MNEs in a Global Economy 599

22.1	Introduction: the five stages in the evolution of the global economy	599
22.2	The determinants of international production: a reprise	603
22.3	Contemporary developments	605
22.4	Conclusions	615

References 618

Author Index 667

Subject Index 675