

Contents

Preface p. ix

Acknowledgments p. xv

Chapter 1

Garden of Letters: Toward a Theory of Literary Nationhood p. 1

Chapter 2

The Limits of Ideology: Rabelais and the Edge of Christendom p. 35

Chapter 3

Nation and Utopia in the 1530s: The Case of Rabelais's Gargantua p. 66

Chapter 4

Narrative Form and National Space: Textual Geography from the Heptaméron to La Princesse de Clèves p. 109

Chapter 5

*Representing France at Mid-Century: Du Bellay and the Lyric
Invention of National Character* p. 150

Chapter 6

History, Alterity, and the European Subject in Montaigne's Essais p. 195

Conclusion:

Pauline's Dream p. 227

Notes p. 233

Bibliography p. 269

Index p. 283