

Contents

Introduction	9
Brief theory and history of polemical stupidity. Why in the Enlightenment?
1 Pascal's Lettres provinciales (1656–1657).....	25
Questioning the authorised discourse: first-person narrative, fragmented form, innocent enquiry, appropriate itinerary. Stupidity and mockery. Evidence (quotation, 'la vérité des faits'); demystification (words and things); reflexivity, pleasure and the public
2 1660–1700: Worldliness and Unworldliness.....	51
Provincials (in Jurieu, Villiers, Bayle). 'Mondains' and the 'Querelle des Anciens et des Modernes' (the Mercure galant ; Perrault's Parallèle and the Chevalier). Strangers (in Marana, Cotelendi, Dufresny, La Bruyère, Lahontan). Women (in Molière, Fontenelle, d'Aulnoy, Bernard, Hamilton)
3 1660–1700: The New Writing	83
Worldliness and pleasure; male désinvolture , female nature; surprise. Refusing to understand the rules, and uncovering the facts: new History, secret memoirs, letters, anecdotes and -ana . Discontinuity (La Bruyère, Bayle); 'historique et critique' (Simon, Du Pin); Bayle and dialogism; Fontenelle and non-closure; fairy-tale, oriental tale, parody, reflexive irony
4 The Naïf in Theatre: 1700–1721	109
Comic theatre. Dufresny, La Joueuse (the young girl): the new Théâtre Italien, Arlequin and Silvia (subaltern charms); Autreau, Le Naufrage ('étrangères'); Daphnis and Chloe and Les Amants Ignorants (innocents); Delisle, Arlequin Sauvage (the savage)
5 The Lettres persanes : 'la parfaite ignorance des liaisons'	125
Generic hybridity and internal fragmentation. Surprise and innocent utterance. Forms of polemical misunderstanding. Difference and play; motivation and function. Corporality: women; eunuchs. The stupidity of Usbek

6 Marivaux: subaltern truths	147
Early works (surprise and burlesque; Le Bilboquet : disruption and mobility). Journalism (truth, modesty and writing). Plays (Arlequin poli : innocence and self-awareness; La Double Inconstance : nature and culture; the utopian plays; the system of the love comedies). The novels (innocence and disruption; unmasking moral and literary)
7 Voltaire: 'le philosophe ignorant'	183
The Lettres philosophiques (form; French clown and Quaker fools; rhetorical devices; the ideology of science; bringing down Pascal). The Traité de métaphysique (rigour versus engagement). The Contes (Aventure indienne ; style; naïvety and the learning process: Candide ; L'Ingénu)
8 Diderot: 'un grand persifleur'	223
Lettre sur les aveugles (corporeal difference). Les Bijoux indiscrets (forms of necessity; mobility, change and persiflage). La Religieuse (body language; freedom and conformity; 'faire la religieuse'). Le Neveu de Rameau (the clown; the comedic mirror; necessity and abjection; the 'levain' and the orchestra)
9 Rousseau: 'Barbarus hic ego sum'	265
Rousseau the fool. The two Discours (ignorance against civilisation; uncovering the natural condition). Emile (from 'l'éducation des choses' to 'préférer sa chimère'). La Nouvelle Héloïse (the refusal to understand reality). Confessions (self-exhibition); Dialogues (the end of dialogism); Rêveries
Conclusion	307
Overview; Graffigny's Péruvienne ; from play to pathos; Rousseau and Diderot
Bibliography	319