

Contents

MARGARETE RUBIK/ELKE METTINGER-SCHARTMANN
Introduction	7
WERNER HUBER
Contemporary Drama as Meta-Cinema: Martin McDonagh and Marie Jones	13
PETER LENZ
“Anything new in the feekin’ west?”: Martin McDonagh’s Leenane Trilogy and the Juggling with Irish Literary Stereotypes	25
MICHAEL RAAB
The End of a Wave: New British and Irish Plays in the German-speaking Theatre	39
MARTIN BUXBAUM
“It’s All Politics, Stupid!”: David Hare and Mark Ravenhill’s Latest, Via Dolorosa and Some Explicit Polaroids	47
MERLE TÖNNIES
The ‘Sensationalist Theatre of Cruelty’ in 1990s Britain, its 1960s Forebears and the Beginning of the 21 st Century	57
MARY LUCKHURST
Contemporary English Theatre: Why Realism?	73
HOWARD BARKER
The Ethics of Relevance and the Triumph of the Literal	85
JOSÉ RAMÓN PRADO PÉREZ
Issues of Representation and Political Discourse in Caryl Churchill’s Latest Work	91

HEINER ZIMMERMANN Martin Crimp, Attempts on her Life : Postdramatic, Postmodern, Satiric?	105
EDITH HALLBERG “The play’s the thing wherein I’ll catch the conscience of the ... player ”: Strategies of Conflict Transformation in Contemporary Australian Drama	125
READE W. DORNAN Whither Black Theater in the U.S.? Ungerminated Seeds From the Thirties	145
PAMELA MONACO Drawing Rooms Drawing Forth Our Social Anxieties	155
CHRISTOPHER INNES Designing Modern Life: The Impact of Theater on American Society	165
MICHELENE WANDOR Feminism and Theatre Now: Continuities and Discontinuities ... plus ça change ...	177
CHRISTOPH HOUSWITSCHKA (Dis)Continuities in Recent British Holocaust Drama	193
NILUFER E. BHARUCHA/SRIDHAR RAJESWARAN Performatives, Performance and Performance Spaces	211
Notes on Contributors	229
Indexes	235