

Contents

|  |      |
|--|------|
| Acknowledgments  | xi   |
| Note on Translations and Abbreviations                             | xiii |
| Introduction: Against the Grain                                    | xv   |
| PART ONE: The Interwar Years                                       |      |
| 1 Locating the Surrealist Revolution in French Culture             | 3    |
| Of Natives and Rebels: Surrealism's Vanguard Primitivism           | 3    |
| Michel Leiris's Search for New Skin in L'Afrique fantôme    | 26   |
| 2 The Emergence of Anti-Colonial Protest in the Imperial Crucible  | 51   |
| On Censorship and Surveillance: The Effects of Colonial Repression | 51   |
| Negritude's Necessity  | 67   |
| PART TWO: The Postwar Years  |      |
| 3 French Existentialism and the Ethics of Difference               | 99   |
| Perspectives on Engagement and Realism                             | 99   |
| Africa Abstracted: Albert Camus's La Peste                  | 122  |

|                                      |   |     |
|--------------------------------------|---|-----|
| 4                                    | Anti-Colonialism Redefined  | 143 |
|                                      | Realism and the Status of an African Perspective                  | 143 |
|                                      | “Africa” Revised: Mongo Beti’s Le Pauvre Christ de Bomba   | 157 |
| PART THREE: Decolonization and After |   |     |
| 5                                    | France’s Imperial Wounds  | 179 |
|                                      | New Novels and the Demise of Empire                               | 179 |
|                                      | Betrayal in the Tropics: Alain Robbe-Grillet’s La Jalousie | 193 |
| 6                                    | Africa’s Post-Colonial Predicament                                | 217 |
|                                      | Of Martyrs and Collaborators: Decolonization Derailed             | 217 |
|                                      | Engendering the Nation: Sony Labou Tansi’s L’Etat honteux  | 231 |
|                                      | Conclusion: Hope  | 253 |
|                                      | Selected Bibliography   | 259 |
|                                      | Index   | 269 |