

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	vii
A Note on References and Translations	ix
W. G. Sebald Chronology	xi

Part I: Contexts

1	Introduction	3
	J. J. Long and Anne Whitehead
2	Meeting Austerlitz	16
	George Szirtes
3	Theoretical Reflections on the Work of W. G. Sebald	23
	Martin Swales

Part II: Landscape and Nature

4	On the Misery of Nature and the Nature of Misery: W. G. Sebald's Landscapes	31
	Greg Bond
5	Ecocentrism in Sebald's After Nature	45
	Colin Riordan
6	Ruins and Poetics in the Works of W. G. Sebald	58
	Simon Ward

Part III: Travel and Walking

7	Reading Room: Erosion and Sedimentation in Sebald's Suffolk	75
	John Beck
8	Textual Wanderings: A Vertiginous Reading of W. G. Sebald	89
	Massimo Leone

9	Sebald's Uncanny Travels: The Impossibility of Getting Lost John Zilcosky	102
Part IV: Intertextuality and Intermediality
10	Infinite Journey: From Kafka to Sebald Martin Klebes	123
11	Architecture and Cinema: The Representation of Memory in W. G. Sebald's Austerlitz Russell J. A. Kilbourn	140
12	Traumatic Photographs: Remembrance and the Technical Media in W. G. Sebald's Austerlitz Carolin Duttlinger	155
Part V: Haunting, Trauma, Memory
13	Taboo and Repression in W. G. Sebald's On the Natural History of Destruction Wilfried Wilms	175
14	Seeing Things: Spectres and Angels in W. G. Sebald's Prose Fiction Jan Ceuppens	190
15	Facing the Past and the Female Spectre in W. G. Sebald's The Emigrants Maya Barzilai	203
	Notes on Contributors	217
	Bibliography	221
	Index	235
