Contents

1. Introduction: ‘Give me that glass, and therein will I read’ 1

2. ‘Sad stories chanced in the times of old’: The Book in Performance in Titus Andronicus and Cymbeline 26

3. ‘The lunatic, the lover, and the poet’: Teaching, Perversion, and Subversion in The Taming of the Shrew and Love’s Labour’s Lost 57

5. ‘Minding true things by what their mockeries be’: Forgetting and Remembering in Hamlet 130

6. ‘Rather like a dream than an assurance’: The Tempest and the Book of Illusions 157

7. Conclusion: ‘We turn’d o’er many books together’ 187

Bibliography 195

Index 213