

Contents

Introduction: Post-devolution Scottish writing	1
PART I: Contexts
1 Going Cosmopolitan: Reconstituting ‘Scottishness’ in Post-devolution Criticism Berthold Schoene	7
2 Voyages of Intent: Literature and Cultural Politics in Post-devolution Scotland Gavin Wallace	17
3 In Tom Paine’s Kitchen: Days of Rage and Fire Suhayl Saadi	28
4 The Public Image: Scottish Literature in the Media Andrew Crumey	34
5 Literature, Theory, Politics: Devolution as Iteration Michael Gardiner	43
6 Is that a Scot or am Ah Wrang? Zoë Strachan	51
PART II: Genres
7 The ‘New Weegies’: The Glasgow Novel in the Twenty-first Century Alan Bissett	59
8 Devolution and Drama: Imagining the Possible Adrienne Scullion	68
9 Twenty-one Collections for the Twenty-first Century Christopher Whyte	78
10 Shifting Boundaries: Scottish Gaelic Literature after Devolution Máire Ní Annracháin	88
11 Pedlars of their Nation’s Past: Douglas Galbraith, James Robertson and the New Historical Novel Mariadele Boccardi	97
12 Scottish Television Drama and Parochial Representation Gordon Gibson and Sarah Neely	106

13	Scotland's New House: Domesticity and Domicile in Contemporary Scottish Women's Poetry Alice Entwistle	114
14	Redevelopment Fiction: Architecture, Town-planning and 'Unhomeliness' Peter Clandfield and Christian Lloyd	124
15	Concepts of Corruption: Crime Fiction and the Scottish 'State' Gill Plain	132
16	A Key to the Future: Hybridity in Contemporary Children's Fiction Fiona McCulloch	141
17	Gaelic Prose Fiction in English Michelle Macleod	149
 PART III: Authors
18	Towards a Scottish Theatocracy: Edwin Morgan and Liz Lochhead Colin Nicholson	159
19	Alasdair Gray and Post-millennial Writing Stephen Bernstein	167
20	James Kelman and the Deterritorialisation of Power Aaron Kelly	175
21	Harnessing Plurality: Andrew Greig and Modernism Simon Dentith	184
22	Radical Hospitality: Christopher Whyte and Cosmopolitanism Fiona Wilson	194
23	Iain (M.) Banks: Utopia, Nationalism and the Posthuman Gavin Miller	202
24	Burying the Man that was: Janice Galloway and Gender Disorientation Carole Jones	210
25	In/outside Scotland: Race and Citizenship in the Work of Jackie Kay Matthew Brown	219
26	Irvine Welsh: Parochialism, Pornography and Globalisation Robert Morace	227
27	Clearing Space: Kathleen Jamie and Ecology Louisa Gaim	236
28	Don Paterson and Poetic Autonomy Scott Hames	245
29	Alan Warner, Post-feminism and the Emasculated Nation Berthold Schoene	255
30	A. L. Kennedy's Dysphoric Fictions David Borthwick	264

PART IV: Topics

31	Between Camps: Masculinity, Race and Nation in Post-devolution Scotland Alice Ferrebe	275
32	Crossing the Borderline: Post-devolution Scottish Lesbian and Gay Writing Joanne Winning	283
33	Subaltern Scotland: Devolution and Postcoloniality Stefanie Lehner	292
34	Mark Renton's Bairns: Identity and Language in the Post- Trainspotting Novel Kirstin Innes	301
35	Cultural Devolutions: Scotland, Northern Ireland and the Return of the Postmodern Matthew McGuire	310
36	Alternative Sensibilities: Devolutionary Comedy and Scottish Camp Ian Brown	319
37	Against Realism: Contemporary Scottish Literature and the Supernatural Kirsty Macdonald	328
38	A Double Realm: Scottish Literary Translation in the Twenty-first Century John Corbett	336
39	Scots Abroad: The International Reception of Scottish Literature Katherine Ashley	345
40	A Very Interesting Place: Representing Scotland in American Romance Novels Euan Hague and David Stenhouse	354
41	Cinema and the Economics of Representation: Public Funding of Film in Scotland Duncan Petrie	362
42	Twenty-first-century Storytelling: Context, Performance, Renaissance Valentina Bold	371
	Notes on Contributors	380
	Bibliography	385
	Index	417