

Contents

List of Figures	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
List of Abbreviations	xiii

Introduction	1
--------------	---

- 1 Feeling, Self-Awareness, and Aesthetic Formalization
after Kant 27

Stimme/Stimmung: Tuning into Thought in Kant's Critique of Judgment, 33 / Reflection, Feeling, and the Text: Novalis reads The Science of Knowledge, 45 / "Instinct transfigured into art": Feeling, Drives, and Constructivist Aesthetics, 53 / Coda: Linguistic Form and Mood as Dialectic in Wordsworth, Hegel, and Hölderlin, 64

PART I: Sublime Politics: Paranoia

- 2 Anxious Inspiration: Radical Knowledge in Godwin
and Some Contemporaries 77

Retroactivity as Romance: William Godwin and the Pleasures of Paranoia, 115 / "Full of a thousand conjectures": Causation and Emotion in Caleb Williams, 133

- 3 Paranoia Historicized: The Dialectics of Treason and Political Representation in 1790s London 146

"The Contingency of a Scratch": Indicting the Political Unconscious in 1794, 159 / "The Dialectics of the Quotidian": Retroactivity in Law, Satire, and Psychoanalysis, 171

PART II: Lyric Awakenings: Trauma

- 4 “Long before the time of which I speak”: Traumatic History and Lyric Awakenings, 1800–1815 191
“Passions that were not my own”: Wordsworth’s Pastoral Art of Equivocation, 209 / The Aura of the Romantic Image: Poetic Cliché as Memory and Revelation, 225
- 5 Phantasie: The Postmodernity of Romantic Lyricism and Political Conservatism 247
Encryption and Disclosure: The Serendipitous Historicity of the Romantic Image, 263 / Retroactivity: Lyricism, Conservatism, Fantasy, and Romantic Postmodernity, 282

PART III. Lyric Provocations: Melancholy

- 6 “The Purest English”: Serialization, Eros, and Melancholy in the Early Keats 309
Bad Grammar and Unnatural Feelings: Keats’s Phantasmagoric Style of 1817, 339 / “A figurative version of our native tongue”: Keats’s Literary Simulations, 365
- 7 Melancholy into Ressentiment: Aesthetic and Social Provocation in Heine’s Buch der Lieder (1827) 379
“Vergiftet sind meine Lieder”: Melancholy as Figurative Toxin in Heine’s Early Poetry, 406 / “Gelbveiglein-Hebräisch”: Jewish Acculturation and Romantic Language Politics, 428 / The Fir or the Palm: Heine’s Melancholy Reevaluation of German-Jewish Culture, 452

Notes 473

Works Cited 533

Index 561