

Contents

List of illustrations	page vi
Preface: The purpose of playing	vii
1 Tradition and change in the Victorian theatre	1
2 The Corsican Brothers by Dion Boucicault	23
3 A theatre of feeling	30
4 Richelieu by Edward Bulwer-Lytton	51
5 The comedian: comic or actor?	62
6 Our American Cousin by Tom Taylor, adapted by E. A. Sothern	80
7 French naturalism and English ensemble	92
8 Caste by T. W. Robertson	108
9 The conventions of melodrama	119
10 Jack Sheppard by J. B. Buckstone	134
11 The psychology of acting	144
12 Tirilby by Paul Potter, after Du Maurier	162
13 Shakespearian interpretation	173
14 Hamlet by William Shakespeare	192
Notes	205
Further reading	231
Index	233

Illustrations

PLATES

I	Long-run machinery: The Corsican Brothers by Dion Boucicault, 1852	page 219
II	The classical image: Macready and Faucit	220
III	A versatile mimic: Patter v Clatter by Charles James Matthews, 1836	221
IV	A traditional comic costume: Three actors as Paul Pry	222
V	The Yankee and the Toff: Our American Cousin by Tom Taylor, 1858	223
VI	Cup-and-saucer ensemble: Caste by Tom Robertson, 1862	224
VII	Cross-dressing in melodrama: Mrs Keely and Madame Celeste	225
VIII	Sacred or profane? The Sign of the Cross by Wilson Barrett, 1896	226
IX	La vie bohémienne: Trilby by Paul Potter, 1895, and Drink by Charles Reade, 1879	227
X	Shakespearean heroines: Ellen Terry and Ada Rehan	228
XI	'Elizabethan' settings: Taming of the Shrew , 1844, and Hamlet , 1900	229
XII	Hamlet , 1897: Forbes Robertson and Mrs Patrick Campbell	230

FIGURES

1	The start	page 32
2	'Horror'	39
3	Andrew Ducrow	48
4	Frederick Robson	74
5	Jack Sheppard	137
6	'Zones of Gesture'	151
7	Henry Irving reciting	195

Acknowledgements

Plates II (a), IX (b), X (a), XII (a and b) and cover illustration: The John Rylands University Library, Manchester (Brook Collection).

Plates IV (a), VI (a), X (b) and XI (a and b): The Theatre Museum (Guy Little and Gabrielle Enthoven collections).