

Contents

|   |     |
|---|-----|
| Introduction   | vii |
| Angela Esterhammer  |     |
| 1 The Evolution of Sensibility and Representation  |     |
| 1.1 Autumn in the Romantic Lyric: An Exemplary Case of Paradigm ShiftLilian R. Furst   | 3   |
| 1.2 Reflection as Mimetic TropeFrederick Burwick   | 23  |
| 1.3 On Romantic CognitionMaria Ciesła-Korytowska   | 39  |
| 1.4 Vörösmarty and the Poetic Fragment in Hungarian RomanticismMihály Szegedy-Maszák   | 55  |
| 1.5 Loss and Expectation: Temporal Entwinement as Figure and Themein Novalis, Wordsworth, Nerval, and LeopardiJohn M. Baker, Jr. | 63  |
| 1.6 Poetry as Self-Consumption: Women Writers and Their Audiencesin British and German RomanticismKari Lokke                     | 91  |
| 2 The Evolution of Genre   |     |
| 2.1 Lyric Poetry in the Early Romantic Theory of the Schlegel BrothersErnst Behler   | 115 |
| 2.2 The Romantic Ode: History, Language, PerformanceAngela Esterhammer   | 143 |
| 2.3 The European Romantic Epic and the History of a GenreIrena Nikolova  | 163 |
| 2.4 The Sublime Sonnet in European RomanticismIan Balfour  | 181 |
| 2.5 Elegiac Muses: Romantic Women Poets and the ElegyPatrick Vincent   | 197 |
| 3 Romantic Poetry and National Projects  |     |
| 3.1 Awakening Peripheries: The Romantic Redefinition of Myth and FolkloreGeorge Biztray  | 225 |
| 3.2 “National Poets” in the Romantic Age: Emergence and ImportanceVirgil Nemoianu  | 249 |

|          |   |     |
|----------|---|-----|
| 3.3      | Romanian Poetry and the Great Romantic Narrativeabout the Mission of the PoetMonica Spiridon                                   | 257 |
| 3.4      | Greek Romanticism: A Cosmopolitan DiscourseGregory Jusdanis  | 269 |
| 3.5      | Time and History in Spanish Romantic PoetryDonald L. Shaw  | 287 |
| 3.6      | The Experience of the City in British Romantic PoetryMichael Gassenmeier and Jens Martin Gurr                                      | 305 |
| 3.7      | "Sons of Song": Irish Literature in the Age of NationalismJulia M. Wright  | 333 |
| 3.8      | Near the Rapids: Thomas Moore in CanadaD. M. R. Bentley  | 355 |
| 3.9      | Address and Its Dialectics in American Romantic PoetryFrederick Garber   | 373 |
| 3.10     | Romantic Poetry in Latin AmericaGwen Kirkpatrick   | 401 |
| 4 | Interpretations, Re-creations, and Performances of Romantic Poetry   |     |
| 4.1      | Baudelaire's Re-reading of Romanticism:Theorizing Commodities / The Commodification of TheoryGeraldine Friedman                | 419 |
| 4.2      | Nachtigallenwahnsinn and Rabbinismus :Heine's Literary Provocation to German-Jewish Cultural IdentityThomas Pfau | 443 |
| 4.3      | Reception as Performance: The Case of Shelley in GermanySusanne Schmid   | 461 |
| 4.4      | Implications of an Influence: On Hölderlin's Reception of RousseauStanley Corngold   | 473 |
| 4.5      | Organicist Poetics as Romantic Heritage?John Neubauer  | 491 |
| 4.6      | The Uses of Romantic Poetry:Feminine Subjects in Modern Spanish CultureSusan Kirkpatrick                                       | 509 |
|          | Index of Names  | 525 |
|          | Index of Titles   | 531 |