

Table of contents

Foreword	vii
Split auxiliary selection from a cross-linguistic perspective Raúl Aranovich	1
Transitivity parameters and auxiliary selection by L2 students of German Carlee Arnett	25
An irrealis BE auxiliary in Romanian Larisa Avram and Virginia Hill	47
Auxiliary selection and split intransitivity in Paduan: Variation and lexical-aspectual constraints Michela Cennamo and Antonella Sorace	65
The development of the HAVE perfect: Mutual influences of Greek and Latin Bridget Drinka	101
Agentivity versus auxiliary choice: Evidence from pronominal binding in German AcI -constructions Vera Lee-Schoenfeld	123
Optimizing auxiliary selection in Romance Géraldine Legendre	145
Auxiliary selection in Chinese Feng-hsi Liu	181
Parameterized auxiliary selection: A fine-grained interaction of features and linking rules Janet H. Randall	207
Particle selection in Korean auxiliary formation Seongha Rhee	237

Language use and auxiliary selection in the perfect K. Aaron Smith	255
Language index	271
Name index	273
Subject index	275